The Pleasure of Painting Franklin Jones, 1975-09      The Pleasure of Painting Franklin Jones, 1981      The Pleasures of Painting with Practical Demonstrations Adrian Hill, 1953      Re-digging Art's Foundations David Thistlethwaite, 2024-11-19

The experience of looking at contemporary art can be baffling even alienating But good art Thistlethwaite asserts makes you feel more human not less and certainly does not undermine your ability to make judgments Too often we have been told it is all so subjective and this has permitted purveyors of ugliness and the second rate to occupy the public square without hindrance But beauty goodness and truth far from being the ragged tatters of a civilization in its death throes are in reality perfectly objective and thrillingly real Everything depends on what sort of world we are living in whether a good God's good creation though marred or one that is according to expert opinion pointless and meaningless The twelve essays here show how a central core of ideas works out when different questions are asked and in one longer narrative essay how they were arrived at The foundations that need re digging for art are discovered in common sense the Bible and a little theology One aim of the book is to bridge the gap between Bible and art and by so doing to liberate art viewers and another is to free art makers into truthful and powerful real world connections

BOOK JACKET      Art Market and Connoisseurship Anna Tummers, Koenraad Jonckheere, 2008 The question of whether seventeenth century painters such as Rembrandt and Rubens were exclusively responsible for the paintings later sold under their names has caused many a heated debate Despite the rise of scholarship on the history of the art market much is still unknown about the ways in which paintings were produced assessed priced and marketed during this period which leads to several provocative questions did contemporary connoisseurs expect masters such as Rembrandt to paint works entirely by their own hand Who was credited with the ability to assess paintings as genuine The contributors to this engaging collection Eric Jan Sluijter Hans Van Miegroet and Neil De Marchi among them trace these issues through the booming art market of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries arriving at fascinating and occasionally unexpected conclusions House Painting and Decorating
