The Politics of Color in the Fiction of Jessie Fauset and Nella Larsen Jacquelyn Y. McLendon, 1995 A critical examination of Fauset's Plum Bun and Comedy American Style and Larsen's Quicksand recovering a subversive element in the Harlem Renaissance writers whose work was revived by feminists in the late 1970s McLendon English College of William and Mary explores how the white writers 19th century stereotype of the tragic mulatto is reinvented in the work of the two writers and transformed into a concept of doubleness representing African American experience Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR To be Suddenly White Steven J. Belluscio, 2006 To Be Suddenly White explores the troubled relationship between literary passing and literary realism the dominant aesthetic motivation behind the late nineteenth and early twentieth century ethnic texts considered in this study Steven J Belluscio uses the passing narrative to provide insight into how the representation of ethnic and racial subjectivity served in part to counter dominant narratives of difference To Be Suddenly White offers new readings of traditional passing narratives from the African American literary tradition such as James Weldon Johnson's The Autobiography of an Ex Coloured Man Nella Larsen's Passing and George Schuyler's Black No More It is also the first full length work to consider a number of Jewish American and Italian American prose texts such as Mary Antin's The Promised Land Anzia Yezierska's Bread Givers and Guido d'Agostino's Olives on the Apple Tree as racial passing narratives in their own right Belluscio also demonstrates the contradictions that result from the passing narrative's exploration of racial subjectivity racial difference and race itself When they are seen in comparison ideological differences begin to emerge between African American passing narratives and white ethnic Jewish American and Italian American passing narratives According to Belluscio the former are more likely to engage in a direct critique of ideas of race while the latter have a tendency to become more simplistic acculturation narratives in which a character moves from a position of ethnic difference to one of full American identity The desire to be suddenly white serves as a continual point of reference for Belluscio enabling him to analyze how writers even when overtly aware of the problematic nature of race especially African American writers are also aware of the conditions it creates the transformations it provokes and the consequences of both By examining the content and context of these works Belluscio elucidates their engagement with discourses of racial and ethnic differences assimilation passing and identity an approach that has profound implications for the understanding of American literary history Twentieth-Century and Contemporary American Literature in Context Linda De Roche, 2021-06-04 This four volume reference work surveys American literature from the early 20th century to the present day featuring a diverse range of American works and authors and an expansive selection of primary source materials Bringing useful and engaging material into the classroom this four volume set covers more than a century of American literary history from 1900 to the present Twentieth Century and Contemporary American Literature in Context profiles authors and their works and provides overviews of literary movements and genres through which readers will understand the

Turning Dreams to Chaos: Multiplicity and the Construction of Identity

Tamara Hollins,2007-06-05 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2003 in the subject American Studies Literature grade None Claremont Graduate University language English abstract This work will reflect on the mutability of meaning in the female mulatto body as well as on the mutability of perception by acknowledging the erroneous nature of race and its concrete results by examining the valorization and undermining of racial essentialism and heterogeneity and by revealing passing as bound by the social and legal restraints related to the physical body even as it interrogates racial classifications. Specifically this study will explore how some nineteenth century modern and postmodern American narratives containing mulattoes and passing personas produce a resolution reiterating the structure of race or new subjectivities within or possibly without the color line. Through this exploration the war between the homogenous Self and the different Other will play out. In an effort to unite a divided personality the Other will counter attempts by the Self to maintain essentialism. The success lies not in the final outcome but in recognizing the subversive acts of the Other and the irrational tactics of the Self as continuously revealing the subjects as always already married and as surpassing mere essentialism into the multitudinous heterogeneous One. Still this work realizes that essentialism has a place in heterogeneity even if essentialism is a logical error. Duality and conflict are inherent in heterogeneity or the multitudinous One. The key is not to eradicate in an essentialist manner one and not the other but to live in a state of awareness respecting and accepting those who knowingly choose to construct identities within or without the color line.

Health in the City Tanya Hart, 2015-05 Shortly after the dawn of the twentieth century the New York City Department of Health decided to address what it perceived as the racial nature of health. It delivered heavily racialized care in different neighborhoods throughout the city: syphilis treatment among African Americans, tuberculosis for Italian Americans, and so on. It was a challenging and ambitious program, dangerous for the providers and troublingly reductive for the patients. Nevertheless, poor and working class African American, British, West Indian, and Southern Italian women all received some of the nation's best health care during this period. Health in the City challenges traditional ideas of early twentieth century urban black health care by showing a program that was simultaneously racialized and cutting edge. It reveals that even the most well meaning public health programs may inadvertently reinforce perceptions of inferiority that they were created to fix.

When Sex Changed Layne Parish Craig, 2013-11-01 In When Sex Changed Layne Parish Craig analyzes the ways literary texts responded to the political, economic, sexual, and social values put forward by the birth control movements of the 1910s to the 1930s in the United States and Great Britain. Discussion of contraception and related topics including feminism, religion, and eugenics changed the way that writers depicted women, marriage, and family life. Tracing this shift, Craig compares disparate responses to the birth control controversy from early skepticism by mainstream feminists reflected in Charlotte Perkins Gilman's Herland to concern about the movement's race and class implications suggested in Nella Larsen's Quicksand to enthusiastic speculation about contraception's political implications as in Virginia Woolf's Three Guineas. While these texts emphasized birth control's potential to transform marriage and family life and emancipate women from the slavery of constant childbearing, birth control advocates also used less than liberatory language that excluded the poor, the mentally ill, non-whites, and others. Ultimately,

Craig argues the debates that began in these early political and literary texts texts that document both the birth control movement s idealism and its exclusionary rhetoric helped shape the complex legacy of family planning and women s rights with which the United States and the United Kingdom still struggle     Turning Dreams to Chaos Tamara Hollins,2011-10 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2003 in the subject American Studies Literature grade None Claremont Graduate University 233 entries in the bibliography language English abstract This work will reflect on the mutability of meaning in the female mulatto body as well as on the mutability of perception by acknowledging the erroneous nature of race and its concrete results by examining the valorization and undermining of racial essentialism and heterogeneity and by revealing passing as bound by the social and legal restraints related to the physical body even as it interrogates racial classifications Specifically this study will explore how some nineteenth century modern and postmodern American narratives containing mulattoes and passing personas produce a resolution reiterating the structure of race or new subjectivities within or possibly without the color line Through this exploration the war between the homogenous Self and the different Other will play out In an effort to unite a divided personality the Other will counter attempts by the Self to maintain essentialism The success lies not in the final outcome but in recognizing the subversive acts of the Other and the irrational tactics of the Self as continuously revealing the subjects as always already married and as surpassing mere essentialism into the multitudinous heterogeneous One Still this work realizes that essentialism has a place in heterogeneity even if essentialism is a logical error Duality and conflict are inherent in heterogeneity or the multitudinous One The key is not to eradicate in an essentialist manner one and not the other but to live in a state of awareness respecting and accepting those who knowingly choose to construct identities within or without the color line     African American Review ,2009 As the official publication of the Division on Black American Literature and Culture of the Modern Language Association of America African American review promotes an exchange among writers and scholars in the arts humanities and social sciences who hold diverse perspectives of African American literature and culture     The Greenwood Encyclopedia of Multiethnic American Literature: D - H Emmanuel Sampath Nelson,2005 Alphabetically arranged entries in five chronological volumes focus on individual authors works and topics related to multiethnic American literature     The Greenwood Encyclopedia of African American Literature: I-N Hans A.
