

About this playbook: the how-to

This playbook is designed to be used by parents or caregivers, students hoping to self-advocate, and even school team members who are hoping to share this info with colleagues or parents, but I hope it can inspire bigger conversations for others as well. Use it. Share it. The more access we have to new tools to support conversations about neurodiversity, the better chance we have of creating positive changes.

Each section of this playbook contains some or all of the following materials:

- Blank templates or forms that you can customize for your needs
- Guidance for some of the resources so that you feel empowered to know how to fill them out
- Informational handouts to share
- Related tips to support your ability to continue to learn about neurodiversity and advocate throughout the year

You might choose to:

- Use all of the resources or you might pick and choose which ones to share
- Use the resources in this book as inspiration to create your own resources to share
- Provide team members with the basics and extra materials on days one, then provide additional resources as the year goes on (Teachers and therapists are often slammed at the beginning of the year, so they may appreciate you spacing out materials and communication.)

Whenever and however possible, I encourage you to include students in the conversation about what to include on the forms. Centering their lived-experience is so important! I also realize this may be more accessible to some students than it is to others. This can be a meaningful opportunity to talk with the speech and language pathologists on your team about how to continue to work toward autonomous communication and self-advocacy.

You can print the resources to fill out by-hand or you can add text and symbols using your pdf program of choice. You can share these materials in hard-copy or digital versions... whatever is most accessible to you.

THIS IMAGE APPEARS ON PAGES INTENDED TO PROVIDE GUIDANCE REGARDING HOW TO FILL OUT THE TEMPLATES.

THIS IMAGE APPEARS ON PAGES INTENDED TO BE FILLED OUT (IF APPLICABLE) AND SENT TO SCHOOL. *IF BOTH IMAGES ARE ON A RESOURCE, THAT MEANS THAT IT COULD BE HELPFUL FOR BOTH HOME OR SCHOOL.
