Social Change And The Life Course:

Social Change and Human Development Rainer K Silbereisen, Xinyin Chen, 2010-04-28 Today's world is characterized by a set of overarching trends that often come under the rubric of social change. In this innovative volume Rainer K Silbereisen and Xinyin Chen bring together for the first time international experts in the field to examine how changes in our social world impact on our individual development. Divided into four parts, the book explores the major socio-political and technological changes that have taken place around the world from post-war to the rapid upheavals in 1990s Europe to the gradual changes in parts of East Asia and explains how these developments interplay with human development across the lifespan. Human Development and Social Change is a useful resource for students and researchers involved in all areas of human development including developmental psychology, sociology and education.

Social Structures and Human Lives Matilda White Riley, Bettina J. Huber, Beth B. Hess, 1988-09 Social Structures and Human Lives consists of papers from the 1986 American Sociological Association annual meeting selected to reflect the rich and diverse array of conceptual, methodological and substantive reports presented there. Leading academics and researchers in the field offer information about aging over the life course, the relationship between aging and the changing structure of families, firms, state and society as a whole and implications for equality of opportunity for people of differing age, gender, race and socioeconomic status. A final chapter links selected topics from previous chapters to established sociological concerns and clarifies the broad scope of the book's central theme.

Higher Education and the Reproductive Life Course Sarbani Banerjee, 2006 This study examines the impact of higher educational attainment on the changing lives of women both at the individual and the societal level. The study focusses on the cross-cultural contexts in one of the states in South India and the Netherlands. Karnataka in the recent times is experiencing fertility transition while the Netherlands has already achieved fertility transition. The two cultural contexts are both diverse and unique in character. The author explores both the uniqueness as well as the similarities, hence studying the impact of higher education on the changing lives of women as a continuum across cultures and societies. Changes at the individual level are captured by distinguishing women into older and younger generations while changes at the societal level are captured through social change. At the individual level we distinguish between the lived life course and the perceived life course. At the societal level we focus on how higher educational attainment has enhanced women's position in the society. The study uses secondary data from the National Family Health Survey 1998-1999 for the state of Karnataka and the Netherlands Family Fertility Survey OG 98. In addition to the secondary data, in-depth interviews were also conducted amongst women in Bangalore and Groningen.

Mortimer, Monica Kirkpatrick Johnson, 2015-10-26 Building on the success of the 2003 Handbook of the Life Course, this second volume identifies future directions for life course research and policy. The introductory essay and the chapters that make up the five sections of this book show consensus on strategic next steps in life course studies. These next steps are explored in detail in each section.

Social Dynamics of the Life Course Walter R. Heinz, Victor W.
