

The Poem You Asked For

My poem would eat nothing.
I tried giving it water but it said no,

worrying me.
Day after day,
I held it up to the light, turning it over,

but it only pressed its lips more tightly together.

It grew sullen, like a toad through with being teased.
I offered it money,

my clothes, my car with a full tank.
But the poem stared at the floor.
Finally I cupped it in my hands, and carried it gently out into the soft air, into the evening traffic, wondering how to end things between us.

For now it had begun breathing, putting on more and more hard rings of flesh.

And the poem demanded the food, it drank up all the water, beat me and took my money, tore the faded clothes

off my back,

said Shit,
and walked slowly away, slicking its hair down.

Said it was going over to your place.

The Poem You Asked For:

The Poem You Asked for Marianne Wolfe,1977 Blue Loop A. J. White,2025-09-15 Blue Loop is composed of poems about addiction and recovery using meditation as a lens through which memories of loss and harm might begin to be processed and accepted It seeks to prioritize and demonstrate dwelling with the self in the present moment avoiding the tendency to do what those in the recovery community call future tripping our innate strong desire to visit things not yet come to pass through the mode of anxious attachment In fact these poems are against attachment in the Buddhist sense accepting and appreciating the beneficial gifts of calm from loved ones and community of all kinds but in search of release from the need to rely on such connections completely Therefore often they are lonely poems Despite searching for connection the speaker remains most faithful to and finds grounding in the self The goal of Blue Loop is to provide potential strategies and modes of thought for readers navigating any form of recovery or in search of more balanced being

One Hundred Poems and the Brain Henry Ryman Miner,2023-12-19 About the Book As Henry Ryman Miner began to grow older he noticed a subtle increase in forgetfulness like going to another room and forgetting what he came for He began to undertake various forms of mental exercise in an effort to improve his memory which led him to engage in the practice of memorizing and reciting favorite and newly discovered poems a practice that he combined with cycling in the Oakland hills Gradually his collection of memorized verse grew to reach one hundred poems Broken into three parts Miner first details his process for memorization explaining in detail his methods and strategies In part two he lists all one hundred poems and includes his thoughts on each reflecting on its place in the chronology of his life Now familiar with his personal process and poems Miner in part three explains the science behind memory memorization and the brain proving and disproving some of his own methods in part one A fascinating read on the realities of memory loss with aging and the power of poetry Miner s One Hundred Poems and the Brain blends science and art into one engaging thoughtful mental exercise

The Marcus Garvey and Universal Negro Improvement Association Papers, Vol. VII Marcus Garvey,2023-09-01 The publication of Volume VII marks the completion of the American series of The Marcus Garvey and Universal Negro Improvement Association Papers This final book in the seven volume set charts the magnetic controversial Pan African leader s career from his deportation from the United States in November 1927 to his death in England in 1940 The volume begins with Garvey s triumphant welcome in Jamaica his tour abroad and his entry into Jamaican party politics It traces his reshaping of the organizational structure of the Universal Negro Improvement Association UNIA in the late 1920s and his management of UNIA affairs from Kingston and London in the 1930s Though typically seen as a time of decline this final period of Garvey s life appears in editorials drawn from his publications as a fruitful one in which some of his strongest political writings were produced Surveillance reports filed by Jamaican police and British colonial officials provide a rich account of Garvey's speeches and activities. Although he was banned from the United States and restricted from traveling or speaking in many areas under colonial supervision, Garvey nevertheless traveled widely after his deportation, visiting and influencing affairs in Geneva, Paris, and London, and making organizational tours of Canada and the Caribbean. He chaired UNIA conferences in Toronto and inaugurated the School of African Philosophy, a series of lectures designed to train UNIA leaders. In the mid 1930s he moved the headquarters of the UNIA to London. In the final months of his life, correspondence between Garvey in England and his young sons in Jamaica shows the personal side of the public leader. The tragedy of Garvey's personal demise is framed by the cataclysmic events of Europe entering a world war and by the decline of the movement he had worked so diligently to build. The long financial hardships of the previous decade and the loss of Garvey's presence had winnowed the membership of the UNIA. Garvey suffered a disabling stroke in January 1940. He died in London the following June as Italy invaded France and Germany prepared to occupy Paris. Volume VII ends with the reconstitution of the UNIA in the months immediately after Garvey's death and the establishment of a new headquarters with new leadership in Cleveland. The publication of Volume VII marks the completion of the American series of The Marcus Garvey and Universal Negro Improvement Association Papers. This final book in the seven volume set charts the magnetic, controversial Pan African leader's career.
