

A woman in a white wedding dress is seen from behind, walking down a dark, narrow staircase. The walls of the staircase are made of rough, textured concrete or stone. The lighting is dramatic, with a strong light source from above, creating a silhouette effect on the woman and highlighting the texture of the walls and the fabric of her dress. The overall mood is mysterious and suspenseful.

from North American Indian cultures The concluding section treats theories of the folktale the collection and classification of folk narrative and then analyzes the living folklore process This work will appeal to students of the sociology of literature professors of comparative literature and general readers interested in folklore The Bride Barbara Tober,1992-06

When asked to name an archetypal love story most people will reply Romeo Juliet although some say Tristan Isolde instead Very few will come up with a classical example and the reason for this is simple when you say archetypal it is assumed you mean love between a man and a woman and instances of this in classical accounts are rare The reason for this is also not hard to find as it does now love in the ancient world meant the affection of equals and given the inferior position of women in Greek and Roman society between the sexes is not usually where love is to be found Straightforward examines how we got from there to here It is a study not of the loves of real people but of the ideal of love as it found expression in stories stories which were often retold and reimagined by new generations and new cultures By following these stories and the changes they underwent through the centuries Straightforward attempts to answer two related questions When and why did the heterosexual ideal become normative in our narrative tradition and What was there before We begin in archaic Greece with a story which was already old when Homer composed his epics The Forgotten Bride Bethany Hauck,2018-12-05
