The Ford Foundation At Work:

The Ford Foundation at Work Richard Magat,2012-12-06 This report originated in a request to me from the Board of Trustees of the Ford Foundation in the summer of 1975 The trustees aware that there would be a change of leadership at the Foundation before 1980 wanted to make a running start in the process of planning for the future Their first step was to make a study of the great national and international needs that might lie ahead in the next decade and a half and where and how the Foundation might address them They sought advice both within the Foundation and outside it and they engaged in long discussions of their own Although the exercise was directed toward planning for the future the trustees also wished to review our past not exhaustively but at least well enough to have a clear sense of what the Foundation had been up to in the quarter century of its existence as a national and international institution In this connection the chairman of our board Alexander Heard asked for a canvass of the Ford Foundation's experiences successes and failures during the last twenty five years focused on the broad objectives sought the means pursued to achieve them and the results The Ford Foundation Report ,2000

From Higher Aims to Hired Hands Rakesh Khurana,2010-03-22 Is management a profession Should it be Can it be This major work of social and intellectual history reveals how such questions have driven business education and shaped American management and society for more than a century The book is also a call for reform Rakesh Khurana shows that university based business schools were founded to train a professional class of managers in the mold of doctors and lawyers but have effectively retreated from that goal leaving a gaping moral hole at the center of business education and perhaps in management itself Khurana begins in the late nineteenth century when members of an emerging managerial elite seeking social status to match the wealth and power they had accrued began working with major universities to establish graduate business education programs paralleling those for medicine and law Constituting business as a profession however required codifying the knowledge relevant for practitioners and developing enforceable standards of conduct Khurana drawing on a rich set of archival material from business schools foundations and academic associations traces how business educators confronted these challenges with varying strategies during the Progressive era and the Depression the postwar boom years and recent decades of freewheeling capitalism Today Khurana argues business schools have largely capitulated in the battle for professionalism and have become merely purveyors of a product the MBA with students treated as consumers Professional and moral ideals that once animated and inspired business schools have been conquered by a perspective that managers are merely agents of shareholders beholden only to the cause of share profits According to Khurana we should not thus be surprised at the rise of corporate malfeasance The time has come he concludes to rejuvenate intellectually and morally the training of our future business leaders The Routledge Companion to the Makers of Global Business Teresa da Silva Lopes,Christina Lubinski,Heidi J.S. Tworek,2019-07-09 The Routledge Companion to the Makers of Global Business draws together a wide array of state of the art research on multinational enterprises The volume aims to deepen our historical understanding of how firms and entrepreneurs contributed to transformative processes of globalization. This book explores how global business facilitated the mechanisms of cross border interactions that affected individuals, organizations, industries, national economies and international relations. The 37 chapters span the Middle Ages to the present day, analyzing the emergence of institutions and actors alongside key contextual factors for global business development. Contributors examine business as a central actor in globalization, covering myriad entrepreneurs, organizational forms and key industrial sectors. Taking a historical view, the chapters highlight the intertwined and evolving nature of economic, political, social, technological and environmental patterns and relationships. They explore dynamic change as well as lasting continuities, both of which often only become visible and can only be fully understood when analyzed in the long run. With dedicated chapters on challenges such as political risk, sustainability and economic growth, this prestigious collection provides a one stop shop for a key business discipline. Building Democracy in Contemporary Russia Sarah Henderson, 2003

Can foreign donors help build new democracies? In the 1990s, public and private organizations such as USAID and the Soros Foundation poured huge amounts of money and expertise into Russia to help build the dream of a vibrant democratic society. Sarah L. Henderson argues that despite the altruistic intentions of foreign assistance agencies and domestic activists, foreign aid designed to spur civic growth has had unintended consequences. Drawing on extensive field work, survey research and work experience for several funding agencies in Moscow in the late 1990s, Henderson focuses on donor efforts to support the emerging community of nongovernmental organizations and, in particular, on efforts to build a functioning women's movement in Russia. Her intimate knowledge of Russia's growing NGO community informs a worrisome finding: foreign aid has made a tremendous difference, but not in altogether expected or positive ways. New Russian civic groups serve either the needs of an indigenous clientele or the demands of the foreign aid bureaucracy, but rarely both. Henderson's research and experience show that while aid has kept a fledgling civic community alive, it is a civic community that is disconnected from its own domestic audience. The book suggests that large flows of foreign aid have, in some ways, damaged the long term prospects for democratization in Russia.

Knowledge Production in Cold War Asia Yuka Tsuchiya, Moriguchi, Shin Kawashima, Somei Kobayashi, 2025-04-01. From the end of the Second World War to the early 1970s, new paradigms began to form in academic scientific and professional knowledge in various disciplines and fields not only in the United States but also in East Asia Drawing on a wealth of archival documents from East Asia Knowledge Production in Cold War Asia focuses on the building and rebuilding of these different forms of knowledge in or about East Asia during the first half of the Cold War It explores how this newly constructed knowledge came to assume certain norms professionals and bureaucrats of these countries tried to comply with and sometimes wrestled with The essays within this collection explore a wide variety of this knowledge production state centered promotions of construction and normalization of knowledge the ways in which non state actors were involved in the construction and normalization of knowledge and how individuals and groups who resisted or protested the hegemonic knowledge were constructed by state or non state actors A distinctive look at the Cold War through the research and perspectives of scholars from East Asia Knowledge Production in Cold War Asia insightfully highlights the role of knowledge production normalization and resistance in the Cold War era contributing to a fuller understanding of international relations
