Jelliffe, 1979 The science of nutrition has advanced beyond expectation since Antoine La Voisier as early as the 18th century showed that oxygen was necessary to change nutrients in foods to compounds which would become a part of the human body He was also the first to measure metabolism and to show that oxidation within the body produces heat and energy In the two hundred years that have elapsed the essentiality of nitrogen containing nutrients and of proteins for growth and maintenance of tissue has been established the ne cessity for carbohydrates and certain types of fat for health has been docu mented vitamins necessary to prevent deficiency diseases have been identified and isolated and the requirement of many mineral elements for health has been demonstrated Further investigations have defined the role of these nutrients in metabolic processes and quantitated their requirements at various stages of development Additional studies have involved their use in the possible prevention of and therapy for disease conditions

Hopkins,Doyle H. Waggle,1979 Abstract New technologies have made it possible to produce soybean flours concentrates and isolates with diverse functional properties that fill many needs in food systems Results reported from nutritional experiments where soy proteins particularly the isolates were fed to infants growing children and young adults demonstrate that the soybean is a nutritionally adequate protein Better methods of protein evaluation for humans are suggested Types of soybean protein products available are defined based on their protein content and general methods of preparation Meetings have proved better understanding and agreement among nations on the philosophies of regulatory practices to ensure full information for the consumer and the food industry. The concept of functionality must be broadened to include the nutritional and physiological function of the proteins and the final food product. Research programs on the proper place of plant protein in the human diet are discussed.

Nutrition and Health John Joseph Baxter Anderson, 2005. Students at the collegiate level need to broaden their knowledge and understanding of nutrition. Nutrition is not a subject devoted simply to the Basic Food Groups or the Pyramid nor is it so simply constrained that only basic eating patterns need be followed to promote good health. Rather the modern concept developed in Nutrition and Health is that the field of nutrition draws on the contributions of genetic inheritance, normal functions at physiological and biochemical levels, environmental contributions to risk for diseases and the general multi-factorial determinants of the health disease continuum of specific populations. Nutrition and Health emphasizes the nutrition of North Americans and is divided into the following sections: Social and Behavioral Aspects of Nutrition, Nutrients in the Body, Nutrition Through the Life Cycle, and Nutrition Disease Relationships. Ample illustrative materials complement the text to enhance concept development along with basic facts. Importance has been placed on accuracy of information, currency of topics and broad perspective of nutrition in the context of human health. Long term dietary patterns that contribute to the common chronic diseases of North Americans are highlighted and biological mechanisms explaining these linkages are offered. Student exercises have been developed for each chapter. Written by experts in the field of nutrition, this book should enhance general understanding of human function that is useful for undergraduates pursuing health careers i.e. medicine, dentistry or veterinary medicine and for those planning to attend graduate programs in the biochemical and molecular biology fields.
