The Language Of The Classroom:

Process and Experience in the Language Classroom Michael Legutke, Howard Thomas, Christopher N.

Candlin, 2014-06-06 Process and Experience in the Language Classroom argues the case for communicative language teaching as an experiential and task driven learning process The authors raise important questions regarding the theoretical discussion of communicative competence and current classroom practice They propose ways in which Communicative Language Teaching should develop within an educational model of theory and practice incorporating traditions of experimental and practical learning and illustrated from a wide range of international sources Building on a critical review of recent language teaching principles and practice they provide selection criteria for classroom activities based on a typology of communicative tasks drawn from classroom experience The authors also discuss practical attempts to utilise project tasks both as a means of realising task based language learning and of redefining the roles of teacher and learner within a jointly constructed curriculum

The Dynamics of the Language Classroom Ian Tudor, 2001 Voices from the Language Classroom Kathleen M. Bailey, David Nunan, 1996-02-23 This volume is a collection of nineteen original papers written by teachers and researchers about what actually happens in language classrooms both those in which language is the topic of instruction and those where it functions primarily as the medium of instruction The authors utilize a variety of research methods with an emphasis on the collection and analysis of qualitative data Chapters investigate such issues as language related anxiety curriculum renewal classroom interaction teachers on line decision making and sociopolitical concerns which affect life in schools Among the countries represented in the research are Australia Hong Kong Hungary Japan Mexico Pakistan Peru Singapore South Africa Spain the Sultanate of Oman and the United States From publisher s description

Understanding Language Classroom Contexts Martin Wedell, Angi Malderez, 2013-04-11 Arguably the whole point of education is to effect change in what people know and are able to do Globalization has contributed to a common perception worldwide of the need to introduce changes to the teaching and learning of languages The success of many attempts to do so has been limited by insufficient consideration of implementation contexts Understanding Language Classroom Contexts explores and illustrates how what happens in any language classroom is influenced by and can be an influence on the contexts in which it is situated A clear understanding of these influences is thus the starting point for planning effective change The book considers many visible and invisible features of the multiple layers of any context and provides a framework for understanding the types of factors that may influence whether changes planned by a teacher or externally initiated are likely to be successful The book will help teachers and educational managers or change planners outside the classroom to understand why their classrooms are as they are and so to make informed decisions about what can or cannot or not easily be changed and suggests how any changes might be appropriately managed Understanding the Language Classroom S. Gieve, I. Miller, 2005-11-30 The starting point for this collection is a chapter by Dick Allwright on the language learning and teaching classroom experience entitled Six Promising Directions in Applied Linguistics The other distinguished contributors respond to this discussion with their own interpretations and from their own experience The collection problematizes prescription efficiency and technical solutions as orientations to classroom language learning Complexity and idiosyncrasy on the other hand are recognized as central concepts in a move towards centralizing teachers and learners own understanding of classroom life in the contexts of language learning adult literacy education and language teacher education

The Language Teaching Matrix Jack C. Richards, 1990-02-23 For use in courses on language teaching methodology and teacher preparation this book also serves as an invaluable source for courses in language curriculum development materials development and teaching practice The author views effective language teaching as a network of interactions involving the curriculum methodology the teacher the learner and instructional materials hence the metaphor of a matrix Each chapter discusses and examines the theoretical and practical dimensions of a central issue in language teaching Among the topics covered are curriculum development designing instructional materials teaching listening speaking reading and writing the nature of effective teaching self monitoring in teacher development and language and content Richards presents key issues in an accessible and highly readable style and shows how teachers and teachers in training can be involved in the investigation of classroom teaching and learning The emphasis is not on prescriptions but rather on developing effective teaching through understanding the various factors that interact in second language learning and in the second language classroom
