The Last Stop West:

The End of the West David Marquand, 2012-08-26 Why Europe is on the decline and what can be done about it Has Europe's extraordinary postwar recovery limped to an end It would seem so The United Kingdom Belgium France Italy and former Soviet Bloc countries have experienced ethnic or religious disturbances sometimes violent Greece Ireland and Spain are menaced by financial crises And the euro is in trouble In The End of the West David Marquand a former member of the British Parliament argues that Europe's problems stem from outdated perceptions of global power and calls for a drastic change in European governance to halt the continent's slide into irrelevance Taking a searching look at the continent's governing institutions history and current challenges Marquand offers a disturbing diagnosis of Europe's ills to point the way toward a better future Exploring the baffling contrast between postwar success and current failures Marquand examines the rebirth of ethnic communities from Catalonia to Flanders the rise of xenophobic populism the democratic deficit that stymies EU governance and the thorny questions of where Europe's borders end and what it means to be European Marquand contends that as China India and other nations rise Europe must abandon ancient notions of an enlightened West and a backward East He calls for Europe's leaders and citizens to confront the painful issues of ethnicity integration and economic cohesion and to build a democratic and federal structure A wake up call to those who cling to ideas of a triumphalist Europe The End of the West shows that the continent must draw on all its reserves of intellectual and political creativity to thrive in an increasingly turbulent world where the very language of East and West has been emptied of meaning In a new preface Marquand analyzes the current Eurozone crisis arguing that it was inevitable due to the absurdity of combining monetary union with fiscal disunion and raises some of the questions Europe will have to face in its recovery
