The Coming Real Estate Crash:

Cash in on the Coming Real Estate Crash David J. Decker, George G. Sheldon, 2006-04-03 After five years of skyrocketing real estate prices fueled by low interest rates aggressive lenders and relative economic prosperity something has to give. Thanks to nonstop recent press coverage of America's overheated housing market you are probably wary of buying your next property at the top of the market. So what should you do? Whether you're an individual investor or a homeowner Cash In on the Coming Real Estate Crash shows you how to gauge the risk of a housing bust in your own local market. More importantly it shows you how to hedge against a crash and position yourself to profit if the bubble bursts. Critical advice covers Identifying signs of an impending collapse Balancing your real estate portfolio so a crash doesn't wipe you out Conservative financing strategies Developing a vision for value in any market Buying low after the bubble bursts Knowing when to sell And many more strategies for making money when the real estate market collapses Peppered with true stories of how homeowners small investors and bona fide real estate tycoons handled and mishandled past crashes Cash In on the Coming Real Estate Crash is the resource you need to prepare for the coming downturn weather the storm and emerge on the other side stronger than ever

Core-Real Estate Investments in Times of Crisis David Pieper, 2012-05-02 Master's Thesis from the year 2012 in the subject Business economics Investment and Finance grade 2.0 University of Regensburg International Real Estate Business School IREBS course Immobilienwirtschaft language English abstract The basis of optimism is sheer terror This drastic quote by Oscar Wilde comes with a core of truth Through the last century's history of money and financial markets the market players were usually driven by the same factors and financial laws For once you have to accept more risk if you want higher yields and therefore you have to pay more if you want a higher security of your invested capital And secondly capital is shy and driven by fear and only partially rational rather than driven by emotions No matter which crisis of for example the 20th century is analyzed usually bubbles were often born slowly but steadily market mechanisms failed and when too much money was available often too cheap prices of certain fields and goods went up drastically investors became greedy and at the peak everything was bursting and fear was ruling Afterwards as for example after the dot com bubble investments into these segments were rare and trust needed to be built up again The commercial and professional real estate market theoretically is in this regard not different from other markets A usual behavior in times of crises is the wish for more security more stable investments and meaning significantly less volatile and ideally very liquid and realizable investments on a market Capital Investments should be safe havens and rather bring little or less money than losing heavily or all In the current time of crisis after the initialized 2008 Lehman Brothers crash and the following subprime crises followed by the global recessions in mostly 2009 some countries 2010 and even today in the days of the European and global sovereign debt crisis real estate investors are as an international phenomenon shifting money into secure
