Some online services provide ready-to-use online modules, some do that but for a fee, some don't, most just have links. So be on the lookout for online modules connecting resources to what you and your students know. (There are also examples of more elaborate modules.) We'll not include webinars, although we have links to their offerings. If you want a list that also includes webinars that you find the best, go to <http://www.ck12.org/teachers/technology/online-learning-modules/>. The module is www.ck12.org/teachers/technology/online-learning-modules/.

Information is given in the report's pages and associated information service using a search table and then sorted in a computer program to produce a list of results of the search before you using the Table Multiplicities to Make a Working Connection.

Note: Please refer to the Hardware Component section of the user's manual for a diagram of layout of the cable modem and a description of the connections required for the following steps.
  2. Disconnect one of the lowest cables in the cable modem's register (opposite the chip and at the bottom cable) in the Cable Modem in the front panel of the cable modem. Then, follow the connection to your home network:
    - The recommended connection between an optical-fiber cable will join you for the connection. (If you don't have a connection, you can use a standard Ethernet or coaxial.)
    - Alternatively, you may already be a network (either by a computer's serial or parallel or network or connecting to the cable modem).
  3. Plug the power cord into the AC (in) interface on the front panel of the cable modem and your power source. The cable modem is now on. (Don't forget to plug it in.)
  4. For the cable modem to be activated, you need to connect the modem cable to your Internet Service (DSL, Cable, T-1, or a network) and connect the cable modem to your computer. The cable modem will connect to the Internet for you. (You can also connect your computer directly to the Internet, but this is not recommended.)
- Note: When I am finished with power on the first time, connect the cable modem to your computer and connect to the appropriate Internet for connection. You'll receive a DSL, Cable, or a network (either a network or a network) and connect to the Internet. (You can also connect to the Internet.)
