Patten,2009 In this unique approach to the Alice phenomenon of Lewis Carroll the author makes clear that far from being just an entertaining children's book the Wonderland Adventures are more complex and deeply reflective of Lewis Carroll's character Alice Riordan Mary Anne Sadlier,1884 Through the Looking-glass, and what Alice Found There Lewis Carroll,1872 Ruth, the Christian Scientist John Chester,1888 Ballou's Monthly Magazine ,1879 MARY BARTON ELIZABETH GASKELL, ELIZABETH GASKELL MARY BARTON A TALE OF MANCHESTER LIFE PREFACE BY ELIZABETH GASKELL Three years ago I became anxious from circumstances that need not be more fully alluded to to employ myself in writing a work of fiction Living in Manchester but with a deep relish and fond admiration for the country my first thought was to find a framework for my story in some rural scene and I had already made a little progress in a tale the period of which was more than a century ago and the place on the borders of Yorkshire when I bethought me how deep might be the romance in the lives of some of those who elbowed me daily in the busy streets of the town in which I resided I had always felt a deep sympathy with the care worn men who looked as if doomed to struggle through their lives in strange alternations between work and want tossed to and fro by circumstances apparently in even a greater degree than other men A little manifestation of this sympathy and a little attention to the expression of feelings on the part of some of the work people with whom I was acquainted had laid open to me the hearts of one or two of the more thoughtful among them I saw that they were sore and irritable against the rich the even tenor of whose seemingly happy lives appeared to increase the anguish caused by the lottery like nature of their own Whether the bitter complaints made by them of the neglect which they experienced from the prosperous especially from the masters whose fortunes they had helped to build up were well founded or no it is not for me to judge It is enough to say that this belief of the injustice and unkindness which they endure from their fellow creatures taints what might be resignation to God's will and turns it to revenge in too many of the poor uneducated factory workers of Manchester The more I reflected on this unhappy state of things between those so bound to each other by common interests as the employers and the employed must ever be the more anxious I became to give some utterance to the agony which from time to time convulses this dumb people the agony of suffering without the sympathy of the happy or of erroneously believing that such is the case If it be an error that the woes which come with ever returning tide like flood to overwhelm the workmen in our manufacturing towns pass unregarded by all but the sufferers it is at any rate an error so bitter in its consequences to all parties that whatever public effort can do in the way of legislation or private effort in the way of merciful deeds or helpless love in the way of widow s mites should be done and that speedily to disabuse the workpeople of so miserable a misapprehension At present they seem to me to be left in a state wherein lamentations and tears are thrown aside as useless but in which the lips are compressed for curses and the hands clenched and ready to smite I know nothing of Political Economy or the theories of trade I have tried to write truthfully and if my accounts agree or clash with any system the agreement or disagreement is unintentional To myself the idea which I have formed of the state of feeling among too many of the factory people in Manchester and which I endeavoured to represent in this tale completed above a year ago has received some confirmation from the events which have so recently occurred among a similar class on the Continent OCTOBER 1848 The Theatre Bernard Capes, Clement Scott, Addison Bright, Charles Eglington, 1895 Vol for 1888 includes dramatic directory for Feb Dec vol for 1889 includes dramatic directory for Jan May Mary Barton Elizabeth Cleghorn Gaskell, 1893
