Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not exercise regularly, and the training group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 12-week training program. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The results showed that the training group had a significantly lower HR and HRR at rest and during maximal exercise compared to the control group at the end of the 12-week training program. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.
