Statistics With Stata Version 8:

Statistics with Stata 5 Lawrence C. Hamilton, 1998 Provides step by step instructions and tutorials for using Stata 5. This popular statistical software is favored particularly for doing social and economic research. Anyone using or considering using Stata 5 to do statistical analysis will appreciate the real world examples Hamilton supplies. This package is one of the most powerful most advanced data analysis packages available to the commercial or student market.

Computational Econometrics Charles G. Renfro, 2004 This publication contains a substantial amount of detail about the broad history of the development of econometric software based on the personal recollections of many people. For economists the computer has increasingly become the primary applied research tool and it is software that makes the computer work.

Regression

Analysis for the Social Sciences Rachel A. Gordon, 2012-06-25 The book provides graduate students in the social sciences with the basic skills that they need to estimate interpret present and publish basic regression models using contemporary standards. Key features of the book include interweaving the teaching of statistical concepts with examples developed for the course from publicly available social science data or drawn from the literature thorough integration of teaching statistical theory with teaching data processing and analysis teaching of both SAS and Stata side by side and use of chapter exercises in which students practice programming and interpretation on the same data set and course exercises in which students can choose their own research questions and data set.

Applied Statistics for the Social and Health Sciences Rachel A. Gordon, 2012-07-26 Applied Statistics for the Social and Health Sciences provides graduate students in the social and health sciences with the basic skills that they need to estimate interpret present and publish statistical models using contemporary standards. The book targets the social and health science branches such as human development, public health, sociology, psychology, education and social work in which students bring a wide range of mathematical skills and have a wide range of methodological affinities. For these students a successful course in statistics will not only offer statistical content but will also help them develop an appreciation for how statistical techniques might answer some of the research questions of interest to them. This book is for use in a two semester graduate course sequence covering basic univariate and bivariate statistics and regression models for nominal and ordinal outcomes in addition to covering ordinary least squares regression. Key features of the book include interweaving the teaching of statistical concepts with examples developed for the course from publicly available social science data or drawn from the literature thorough integration of teaching statistical theory with teaching data processing and analysis teaching of both SAS and Stata side by side and use of chapter exercises in which students practice programming and interpretation on the same data set and course exercises in which students can choose their own research questions and data set.
