Surfing The Zeitgeist:

Surfing the Zeitgeist Gilbert Adair, 2014-10-16 Surfing the Zeitgeist is a collection of essays by Britain's preeminent post modernist. Confronted with a world in which too much is changing too fast, the attitude of most British critics is simply to ignore the fact that today's culture is in a state of constant ebullience and continues turning out or churning out week after week, month after month, the kind of article a complacent conflation of artistic impressions that could have been written thirty, fifty, or a hundred years ago. Gilbert Adair is a critic with a difference. Witty, perspicacious, and in love with language, he is prepared to engage with the multifarious realities of our culture in the least restricted sense of the word. He is prepared to embrace them if not unconditionally, then at least without encumbering himself with any twinges of nostalgia for the past's redundant credos and repertoires. The essays, which make up this collection on subjects as various as postmodernism and pop music, AIDS and art movies, Tintin and the Titanic, thus constitute a uniquely stimulating record of the nineties and, like the cool, glinting surfaces of a Calder mobile, reflect the most significant fragments of our cultural agenda.

His market is staring him in the face: millions of teenagers trapped in a world of mullahs and mosques, all ready to blow their pocket change on G 7's massive merchandising campaign and to wildly anticipate music the band will never release. Leggy's brilliant plan means doing business with some of the world's most dangerous people. Among these thieves, schemers, and killers, he must act quickly and decisively. Y2K is just around the corner and the only rule to live by is that the whole scheme stops before the year 2000.
