The Mammal In The Mirror Understanding Our Place In The Natural World:

Natural Selections (Large Print 16pt) David P. Barash, Professor of Psychology and Founder and Director of the Peace and Strategic Studies Program David P Barash, PH.D., 2011-01-22 If we are in part a product of our genes can free will exist Incisive and engaging this indispensable tour of evolutionary biology runs the gamut of contemporary debates from science and religion to our place in the universe Restoring the Human Context to Literary and Performance Studies Howard Mancing, Jennifer Marston William, 2022-01-28 Restoring the Human Context to Literary and Performance Studies argues that much of contemporary literary theory is still predicated at least implicitly on outdated linguistic and psychological models such as post structuralism psychoanalysis and behaviorism which significantly contradict current dominant scientific views By contrast this monograph promotes an alternative paradigm for literary studies namely Contextualism and in so doing highlights the similarities and differences among the sometimes conflicting contemporary cognitive approaches to literature and performance arguing not in favor of one over the other but for Contextualism as their common ground

Revolutionary Biology David P. Barash, There is a revolution underway in biology It is based on a new perception of bodies and genes in which the former are the end product of the latter within the continuum of evolution Twenty five years after Richard Dawkins helped revolutionize our thinking about selfish genes it is time to re evaluate Revolutionary Biology explains in simple vivid terms what this exciting approach has to offer and then applies its stunning insights to human beings This novel perspective galvanizes our understanding of how evolution works what living things are all about and not least what it means to be human The controversial disciplines of sociobiology and evolutionary psychology have generated startling insights into longstanding questions concerning the nature and purpose of families altruism vs selfishness and free will vs biological determinism Written by one of its foremost figures Revolutionary Biology is a manifesto and educated layman's guide to this ongoing revolution Barash's purpose is to demystify the basic concepts of the genetic revolution and take the reader on a tour accessible and authoritative of the principles that underlie this fascinating turn in scientific thought Much has been written about evolution animals and the animal and evolutionary origins of human behavior yet only recently have biologists begun to appreciate these connections The key concept is that genes not species not groups and not even individuals are the apple of evolution's eye The result has been a major biological paradigm shift that is making itself felt in the social sciences as well Barash explores the phenomenon of altruism both at the animal level and the human level Barash draws not only on a wealth of biological evidence but on literature philosophy and the familiar details of everyday life to communicate the essentials of this increasingly influential approach to the study of the human species Clearly and engagingly written Revolutionary Biology will be fascinating reading for those seeking an entry into this new science
