Stephen Spender, Irving Kristol

The Man With The Shattered World:

The Man with a Shattered World A. R. Luria, 1987-04-30 Luria presents a compelling portrait of a man's heroic struggle to regain his mental faculties A soldier named Zasetzky wounded in the head at the battle of Smolensk in 1943 found himself unable to recall his recent past or speak read or write without difficulty Woven throughout his first person account are interpolations by Luria himself

De man die zijn vrouw voor een hoed hield Oliver Sacks, 2015-08-28 In De man die zijn vrouw voor een hoed hield vertelt Oliver Sacks de verhalen van mensen die lijden aan perceptuele en intellectuele afwijkingen patiënten die hun herinneringen kwijt zijn niet langer in staat zijn om geliefden of alledaagse voorwerpen te herkennen of patiënten die te maken hebben met tics en die zonder dat te willen obsceniteiten schreeuwen Hoewel deze gevallen ons vaak bizar voorkomen worden ze door Sacks respectvolle en sympathieke wijze van vertellen diep menselijk Aan de hand van fascinerende en vaak ontroerende ziektegeschiedenissen laat Sacks zien hoe het is om te moeten leven met een neurologische afwijking

The Male Body in Medicine and Literature Andrew Mangham, Daniel Lea, 2018 With the dawn of modern medicine there emerged a complex range of languages and methodologies for portraying the male body as prone to illness injury and dysfunction Using a variety of historical and literary approaches this collection explores how medicine has interacted with key moments in literature and culture

Psychologies in Revolution Hannah Proctor, 2020-01-13 This book situates the work of the Soviet psychologist and neurologist Alexander Luria 1902 1977 in its historical context and explores the romantic approach to scientific writing developed in his case histories Luria consistently asserted that human consciousness was formed by cultural and historical experience He described psychology as the science of social history and his ideas about subjectivity cognition and mental health have a history of their own Lines of mutual influence existed between Luria and his colleagues on the other side of the iron curtain but Psychologies in Revolution also discusses Luria's research in relation to Soviet history from the October Revolution of 1917 through the collectivisation of agriculture and Stalinist purges of the 1930s to the Second World War and finally the relative stability of the Brezhnev era foregrounding the often marginalised people with whom Luria's clinical work brought him into contact By historicising science and by focusing on a theoretical approach which itself emphasised the centrality of social and political factors for understanding human subjectivity the book also seeks to contribute to current debates in the medical humanities

Plasticity and Pathology David Bates, Nima Bassiri, 2016-01-15 With the rise of cognitive science and the revolution in neuroscience it is now commonplace to assume that the study of a human person a thinking feeling acting subject is ultimately the study of the human brain In both Europe and the United States massive state funded research is focused on mapping the brain in all its remarkable complexity The metaphors employed are largely technological A wiring diagram of synaptic connectivity will lead to a better understanding of human behavior and perhaps insights into the breakdown of human personhood with diseases of the brain such as Alzheimer's. Alongside this technologized discourse of the brain as locus of human subjectivity we find another perspective one that emphasizes its essential plasticity in both the developmental sense and as a response to traumas such as strokes tumors or gunshot wounds. This collection of essays brings together a diverse range of scholars to investigate how the neural subject of the twenty first century came to be. Taking approaches both historical and theoretical they probe the possibilities and limits of neuroscientific understandings of human experience. Topics include landmark studies in the history of neuroscience the relationship between neural and technological pathologies and analyses of contemporary concepts of plasticity and pathology in cognitive neuroscience. Central to the volume is a critical examination of the relationship between pathology and plasticity. Because pathology is often the occasion for neural reorganization and adaptation it exists not in opposition to the brain's normal operation but instead as something intimately connected to our ways of being and understanding. The Man with a Shattered World Aleksandr Romanovich Luriiĭaĭ, 1976-09-01 A young soldier suffered a severe brain injury resulting in impaired vision loss of memory and loss of the ability to speak read and write. As though he were a child he has to relearn. Professor Luria worked with him for over twenty years together building a life for him. Human Behavior, 1973 Book Review Index, 1987 Every 3rd issue is a quarterly cumulation.
