The Culture of Conflict Marc Howard Ross,1993-01-01 In this book Marc Howard Ross develops a broad theoretical explanation for cross cultural differences in conflict claiming that both social structural interests and psychocultural dispositions must be taken into account to explain why some societies are especially prone to conflict and others are more peaceful

Evolutionary Theory and Ethnic Conflict Patrick James,David Goetze,2001-08-30 James and Goetze bring together contributors of varied backgrounds ranging from evolutionary theorists to game theorists to analysts of specific ethnic conflict Their work represents a coherent attempt at evaluating the usefulness of evolutionary theories for explaining ethnic phenomena and demonstrates how these theories can be applied in attempts to elucidate real world behaviors This study found that kinship theory that posits evolved dispositions to form cooperative bonds with family ethnic groups and other social groups may go a long way in accounting for the formation of ethnic groups Also ingroup outgroup theory may contribute to understanding how group conflict commences Likewise the description of evolved mechanisms for discerning threat for building reputations and for recognizing individuals groups and states as possible cooperators and long term allies may facilitate explanation of the outbreak and avoidance of group conflicts This also may explain the design of conscious strategies for conflict prevention and resolution Nonetheless several contributors take a more critical stance and offer ample reason why building these explanations may prove elusive or at least troublesome given the complex character of human societies This work is a provocative resource for scholars students and other researchers involved with ethnicity and ethnic conflict international relations social psychology and social anthropology

Investigating the causes and consequences of ethnic conflict the authors argue that the most effective responses are those that take into account factors at the local state regional and global level and that avoid seeking simplistic explanations and solutions to what is a truly complex phenomenon Ethnic conflicts are man made not natural disasters and as such they can be understood prevented and settled However it takes skilful committed and principled leaders to achieve durable settlements that are supported by their followers and it takes the long term commitment of the international community to enable and sustain such settlements Book Jacket      □□, □□□□□□□□, 2003      The Handbook of Interethnic Coexistence Eugene Weiner, 1998 Addresses the question of how ethnic groups and nations can coexist with one another without sacrificing their own identities and values The book offers both theoretical and practical resources for facilitating interethnic coexistence and contains an appendix with a bibliography and a list of organizations sponsoring coexistence work      Dispute Processing and Conflict Resolution Carrie Menkel-Meadow, 2003 This insightful volume is essential for a clearer understanding of dispute resolution After examining the historical and intellectual foundations of dispute processing Carrie Menkel Meadow turns her attention to the future of conflict resolution      Journal of the Institute for the Study of Legal Ethics, 1996

Brigg, Roland Bleiker, 2011-01-31 Mediating Across Difference is based on a fundamental premise to deal adequately with conflict and particularly with conflict stemming from cultural and other differences requires genuine openness to different cultural practices and dialogue between different ways of knowing and being Equally essential is a shift away from understanding cultural difference as an inevitable source of conflict and the development of a more critical attitude toward previously under examined Western assumptions about conflict and its resolution To address the ensuing challenges this book introduces and explores some of the rich insights into conflict resolution emanating from Asia and Oceania Although often overlooked these local traditions offer a range of useful ways of thinking about and dealing with difference and conflict in a globalizing world To bring these traditions into exchange with mainstream Western conflict resolution the editors present the results of collaborative work between experienced scholars and culturally knowledgeable practitioners from numerous parts of Asia and Oceania The result is a series of interventions that challenge conventional Western notions of conflict resolution and provide academics policy makers diplomats mediators and local conflict workers with new possibilities to approach prevent
