Fogs of War and Peace Robert L. Dilworth, Schlomo Maital, 2008-09-30 The war in Iraq Afghanistan continual conflict in the Middle East and the global war on terrorism are all intertwined in a greater battle of global conflict World War III However the fogs that have been created to hide these conflicts from public opinion are obstructing a clear view of reality Fogs prevent the public from accurately seeing this war unfold and from taking action in the government to help prevent this now inevitable conflict This work unveils that the media and government are two thickening fogs that continue to obscure the reality of what is occurring Media does little to help develop an in depth understanding of the world In turn this creates limited interest in reporting of foreign affairs among the market sectors they strive to reach The government has focused on winning the hearts and minds of the American people in order to drive the cause of the war on terrorism Yet this war has unleashed greater struggles which citizens have covertly been blinded to While these global conflicts are seemingly isolated the authors illustrate that they are in fact closely linked with similar underlying causes The fogs of war and peace need to lessen so the American people can be accurately informed and global leaders are able to strive for better policies in order to bring World War III to an end Seemingly unrelated conflicts raging in Iraq Afghanistan the Middle East and other global areas are in fact closely linked as part of a greater battle World War III In the midst of conflict this work delves into factors of World War III and claims that we have already begun this new war However in an age where the average American citizen is uninformed on international foreign policy and conflict the two fogs of government and media are only contributing to this miseducation These fogs have never been thicker in obscuring the reality of what is occurring The fog that is media explains what is occurring in cryptic sound bites by funneling certain information to the American people Government the second fog affects citizens by either withholding or distorting information and opponents and expands a great effort to deceive and distort current events In turn it tries to win the hearts of the people by explaining that this is the only way to obtain the idea of peace This work explains that through the distorted reality of the fogs we are now in a stage of disinformation misinformation and noninformation which block the view of citizens from what is truly happening and how to deal with it It is the first analytical model that clearly examines the fogs of war and peace and how new perspectives must be found The authors offer a model to help inform readers to better understand World War III while illuminating the causes nature and dynamics of the global concern In turn they offer new policy directions for political leaders in America Israel and Europe and hope to bring to light these fogs of destruction Congressional Record United States. Congress, 1998 The Congressional Record is the official record of the proceedings and debates of the United States Congress It is published daily when Congress is in session The Congressional Record began publication in 1873 Debates for sessions prior to 1873 are recorded
