The Man Inside A Novel:

Introduction to the Literature of Europe in the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, and Seventeenth Centuries Henry Hallam, 1880 A Library of the World's Best Literature Charles Dudley Warner, Hamilton Wright Mabie, Charles Henry Warner, Lucia Isabella Gilbert Runkle, George H. Warner, 1897 Phantom fortune : a novel ; in three volumes. 2 Mary Elizabeth Braddon, 1883 Epic into Novel Henry Power, 2015-02-19 Epic into Novel looks at Henry Fielding's adaptation of classical epic in the context of what he called the Trade of authoring. Fielding was always keen to stress that his novels were modelled on classical literature. Equally he was fascinated by and wrote at length about the fact that they were objects to be consumed. He recognised that he wrote in an age when an author had to consider himself as one who keeps a public Ordinary at which all persons are welcome for their Money. In describing his work he alludes both to Homeric epic and to contemporary cookery books. This tension in Fielding's work has gone unexplored: a tension between his commitment to a classical tradition and his immersion in a print culture in which books were consumable commodities. This interest in the place of the ancients in a world of consumerism was inherited from the previous generation of satirists. The Scriblerians among them Jonathan Swift, John Gay and Alexander Pope repeatedly suggest in their work that classical values are at odds with modern tastes and appetites. Fielding, who had idolised these writers as a young man, developed many of their satiric routines in his own writing. But Fielding broke from Swift, Gay and Pope in creating a version of epic designed to appeal to modern consumers. Henry Power provides new readings of works by Swift, Gay and Pope and of Fielding's major novels. He examines Fielding's engagement with various Scriblerian themes: primarily the consumption of literature but also the professionalisation of scholarship and the status of the author and shows ultimately that Fielding broke with the Scriblerians in acknowledging and celebrating the influence of the marketplace on his work. Christian Literature and Review of the Churches, 1894 The universal anthology, a collection of the best literature, with biographical and explanatory notes, ed. by R.
