Flying Solo Linda Holmes, 2022-06-14 NATIONAL BESTSELLER A woman returns to her small Maine hometown uncovering family secrets that take her on a journey of self discovery and new love in this warm and charming novel from the New York Times bestselling author of Evvie Drake Starts Over A testament to the truth that love comes in all shapes sizes and situations Jodi Picoult ONE OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR NPR PopSugar Smarting from her recently canceled wedding and about to turn forty Laurie Sassalyn returns to her Maine hometown of Calcasset to handle the estate of her great aunt Dot a spirited adventurer who lived to be ninety three Alongside boxes of Polaroids and pottery a mysterious wooden duck shows up at the bottom of a cedar chest Laurie s curiosity is piqued especially after she finds a love letter to the never married Dot that ends with the line And anyway if you re ever desperate there are always ducks darling Laurie is told that the duck has no financial value But after it disappears under suspicious circumstances she feels compelled to figure out why anyone would steal a wooden duck and why Dot kept it hidden away in the first place Suddenly Laurie finds herself swept up in a righteous caper that has her negotiating with antiques dealers and con artists going on after hours dates at the local library and reconnecting with her oldest friend and her first love Desperate to uncover her great aunt s secrets Laurie must reckon with her own past and her future and ultimately embrace her own vision of flying solo With a cast of unforgettable characters and a heroine you will root for from page one Flying Solo is a wonderfully original story about growing up coming home and learning to make a life for yourself on your own terms Mississippi Solo Eddy L. Harris, 1988 The true account of a young black man s journey in quest of a lifelong dream to canoe the length of the Mississippi River from its source in Minnesota down to New Orleans Solo Pierre Coalfleet, 1924 Solo Nanga Parbat Reinhold Messner, 1980 Solo Frank Cyril Davison, 1924 Café Solo , 1984 Solo Pen Hadow, 2004 In May 2001 the country was gripped by the fate of Arctic explorer Pen Hadow stranded with diminishing supplies on the ice cap after successfully reaching the Pole Despite severe setbacks he walked skied and swam for two months to fulfil a lifetime s dream This is his story Share the Music , 1995 SUMMARY Teacher s edition with piano accompaniments organized for both music specialists and classroom teachers with songs listenings sequenced learning integrated curriculum and culturally authentic music Power from the Waves David Ross, 1995 Foreword by Dr D A Elliott Open University Over the last decade or so renewable energy technology has moved from the margins to the mainstream Whereas once it was the dream of utopians now we have British Trade and Industry Ministers talking of L2 5 billion market for the UK renewable energy industry and the government s Renewable Energy Advisory Group estimating that the renewable sources could contribute perhaps 20 per cent of the UK s electricity requirement by the year 2025 Although some work had been done earlier the UK entered the renewable energy field seriously in 1974 following the first oil crisis A total of some L230 million has been spent on a range of research and development projects Wave power was initially seen as one of the front runners and some L15million was spent on it before the deep sea wave programme was wound up in 1982 The decision to abandon deep sea wave power was the focus for much debate in which the author David Ross took a vigorous part His book Energy From the Waves first published in 1979 provided unique coverage for the general reader as well as for students of renewable energy of the technology involved in capturing the energy of the waves and of the historical and political development of this novel technology He has since followed the twists and turns of the debate over wave power and while his investigative journalism and campaigning style have not endeared him to the energy establishment his energetic exploration of the policy issues has provided us with a fascinating account of decision making processes The policy issues are now if anything more urgent than ever With nuclear power widely seen as an unviable option the development of renewable energy technologies along with conservation techniques are one way in which we can respond to the threat of global warming and other environmental problems Clearly some of his analysis is contentious But then the topic is controversial with interpretations of facts often still being in dispute For example in terms of the economics all we have are estimates of likely costs often based on purely conceptual systems framed in contemporary short term financial accounting contexts which usually ignore wider environmental considerations Given this situation it would probably be impossible to produce a totally independent and impartial review of the issues or a final conclusion on wave power The jury is still out Accepting this limitation although he is clearly a partisan for wave energy Ross provides us with a unique insight into the issues of the technological decision making process an insight which may help us decide on the issues ourselves Over the last decade or so renewable energy technology has moved from the margins to the mainstream By the year 2025 capturing the energy of waves could provide more than 20 per cent of the UK's electricity needs And this clean renewable power source would cause no environmental damage and no use of finite fossil fuel resources This book explains how it could work how experimental stations do work and the politics and vested interests that have hindered and continue to hinder it
