Squashed In The Middle:

Grammatical Voice M. H. Klaiman, 2005-11-24 Categories of the verb in natural languages include tense aspect modality mood and voice Among these voice in its rich and diverse manifestations is perhaps the most complex But most prior research concentrates on only certain types predominantly passives Voice expresses relations between a predicate and a set of nominal positions or their referents in a clause or other structure Grammatical Voice is the first typological study of voice systems based on a multi language survey It introduces a threefold classification of voice types in the first place distinguishing passivization phenomena derived voice from active middle systems basic voice and further distinguishing each of these from pragmatically grounded voice behaviours such as focus and inverse systems As the first comprehensive study of voice systems and voice typology this book makes a significant contribution to current research in linguistics and grammatical theory Technological Choices and Material Meanings in Early and Middle Bronze Age Hungary Attila grammatical theory      Technological Choices and Material Meanings in Early and Middle Bronze Age Hungary Attila Kreiter, 2007 This study assesses patterns in technological choices for key cultural groups in Bronze Age Hungary through macroscopic and petrological analyses of ceramic assemblages with a focus on understudied categories such as storage vessels Technological style results in a characteristic way of making pottery through communication of values and beliefs through the generations If technological difference can be identified and is seen as distinctive to a specific cultural group then it follows that by comparing technological traditions it may be possible to distinguish between the different social dynamics of contemporary societies Similarities allow us to assess the nature of social relations between communities This may call into question how traditional studies have constructed typologically defined cultural groups and provide a less fragmented picture of the Bronze Age of Hungary Thus this research is not a methodological study of provenancing ceramics but tries to answer specific archaeological questions through scientific methods      Squashed in the Middle Elizabeth
