A Thrice-Told Tale Margery Wolf,1992-04 A Thrice Told Tale is one ethnographer s imaginative and powerful response to the methodological issues raised by feminist and postmodernist critics of traditional ethnography The author a feminist anthropologist uses three texts developed out of her research in Taiwan a piece of fiction anthropological fieldnotes and a social science article to explore some of these criticisms Each text takes a different perspective is written in a different style and has different outcomes yet all three involve the same fascinating set of events A young mother began to behave in a decidedly abherrant perhaps suicidal manner and opinion in her village was sharply divided over the reason Was she becoming a shaman posessed by a god Was she deranged in need of physical restraint drugs and hospitalization Or was she being cynically manipulated by her ne er do well husband to elicit sympathy and money from her neighbors In the end the woman was taken away from the area to her mother s house For some villagers this settled the matter for others the debate over her behavior was probably never truly resolved The first text is a short story written shortly after the incident which occurred almost thirty years ago the second text is a copy of the fieldnotes collected about the events covered in the short story the third text is an article published in 1990 in American Ethnologist that analyzes the incident from the author s current perspective Following each text is a Commentary in which the author discusses such topics as experimental ethnography polyvocality authorial presence and control reflexivity and some of the differences between fiction and ethnography The three texts are framed by two chapters in which the author discusses the genereal problems posed by feminist and postmodernist critics of ethnography and presents her personal exploration of these issues in an argument that is strongly self reflexive and theoretically rigorous She considers some feminist concerns over colonial research methods and takes issues with the insistence of some feminists that the topics of ethnographic research be set by those who are studied The book concludes with a plea for ethnographic responsibility based on a less academic and more practical perspective How Museums Tell Stories Amelia Wong,2025-03-27 How Museums Tell Stories explains how museums work as a form of media that narrates stories intentionally and unintentionally Story in life and in museums is a phenomenon that emerges as people perceive represent and interpret the qualities of tellability and narrativity in relation to stimuli Tellability is noteworthiness it attracts our attention Narrativity is a set of elements that enables us to perceive a story is being or could be told The book discusses how and why these qualities are so present in museums and how they enable physical institutions to tell stories in many forms at many scales in many styles of representation and to varying degrees Drawing on conceptions of narrative from literary theory film psychology and cognitive science Wong offers a shared vocabulary for understanding and analyzing how story manifests in museums at the level of objects collections exhibitions and space How Museums Tell Stories will be essential reading for researchers and students interested in how and why museums engage audiences as well as museum and cultural heritage practitioners seeking concepts and analytical tools for approaching and evaluating their work more critically and conscientiously Twice-told Tales Nathaniel Hawthorne,1882 narrative and particularly oral storytelling can be used to bring literacy to life for primary school children. This ancient art provides models and structures for teachers to support children's understanding and use of narrative and reveals fascinating insights into other times and cultures. The authors relate how teachers develop their own storytelling skills and the abilities of children to share and retell personal and traditional tales. In A Story to Tell performers, teachers and students describe how stories from all parts of the world can be enjoyed, discussed, adapted and performed to develop language and literacy learning. They explore the use of stories in humanities, religious education and other areas of the curriculum. The role of visiting professional storytellers is examined with examples of their work with children and teachers in the UK and Ireland. And the student storytellers' adaptation and retelling of Asian, African and European tales from their own childhood are fascinating and inspiring.
