Le Clair,2013-09-13 Sport is often at the centre of battles for rights to inclusion linked to class race and gender and this book explores struggles centred on disability in different cultural settings in Europe North America Africa Asia and Oceania It challenges oversights and assumptions about the normal body and describes how individual and organizational transformations can occur through sport. The abilities of a person are recognised and placed centre stage instead of the individual being forgotten, excluded or placed at the margins simply because they have a disability. National, regional and global change is part of the shift to the rights-based approach reflected in the 2006 UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. Making sport inclusive affects the accessibility of facilities, funding, the media, policies, programs, organisations, sponsors and spectators and at the same time changes the cultural values of the wider society. It also raises issues about competition, access and eligibility for different and technologically enhanced cyborg bodies and for those most socially disadvantaged. Addressing these questions which ultimately touch on the real meaning of sport can lead to profound changes in people's attitudes and how sport is organized locally and globally. Growth in the influential global organisations of the Paralympic Games, Special Olympics and Deaflympics is examined as is the approach to disability in sport in both advantaged and resource-poor countries. The embodied lives of persons with disabilities are explored utilizing new theoretical models, perspectives and approaches. This book was previously published as a special issue of Sport in Society.

Sport and Disability Florian Kiuppis, 2018-12-07. Inclusion is primarily discussed in education. With the increasing number of member states of the United Nations ratifying the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, academics have vividly discussed inclusion in the context of other areas of life such as the community at large, as social inclusion in the context of work and employment and with regard to the aspects addressed by Article 30.5 of the Convention, namely cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport. This volume is organized around the topic of inclusion in sport and has a particular focus on the participation of people with disabilities in sport. Typical barriers for people with disabilities to participate in sport include lack of awareness on the part of people without disabilities as to how to involve them in teams, inadequate lack of opportunities and programmes for training and competition, too few accessible facilities due to physical barriers and limited information on and access to resources. The chapters attribute central importance to the processes and mechanisms of inclusion that operate within sporting environments and to the question of either what happens or could happen to persons with disabilities who enter the playing field. The chapters were originally published in a special issue of Sport in Society.
