Global and Regional Dynamics in Knowledge Flows and Innovation Chris Van Egeraat, Dieter Kogler, Phil Cooke, 2015-10-14 Innovation which in essence is the generation of knowledge and its subsequent application in the marketplace in the form of novel products and processes has become the key concept in inquiries concerning the contemporary knowledge based economy Geography plays a decisive role in the underlying processes that enable and support knowledge formation and diffusion activities Place specific characteristics are considered especially important in this context however more recently investigation into innovative capacity of places has also turned its attention to external knowledge inputs through innovation networks and increasingly recognize the evolutionary character of the processes that lead to knowledge creation and subsequent application in the marketplace The chapters that comprise this book are embedded at the intersection of the dynamic processes of knowledge production and creative destruction The first three contributions all discuss the role of global innovation networks in the context of territorial and or sectoral dynamics while the following two chapters investigate the evolution of regional or metropolitan knowledge economies The final three contributions adopt a knowledge base approach in order to provide insight into the organisation of innovation networks and spatiality of knowledge flows This book was published in a special issue of European Planning Studies

Organizing

Global Technology Flows Pierre-Yves Donzé, Shigehiro Nishimura, 2013-11-12 Research on the international transfer of technology in economics and management literature has primarily focused on the role of countries and that of companies in particular multinational enterprises MNEs Similarly economic and business historians have tended to view international technology transfer as a way for economically backward countries to acquire new technologies in order to catch up with more developed economies This volume provides a more in depth understanding of how the international transfer of technologies is organized and in particular challenges the core periphery model that is still dominant in the extant literature By looking beyond national systems of innovation and statistics on foreign trade patent registration and foreign direct investment the book sheds more light on the variety of actors involved in the transfer process including engineers entrepreneurs governments public bodies firms etc and on how they make use of a broad set of national and international institutions facilitating technology transfer Put differently the volume offers a better understanding of the complexity of global technology flows by examining the role and actions of the different actors involved By bringing together a number of original case studies covering many different countries over the period from the late 19th to the 21st century the book demonstrates how technology is being transferred through complex processes involving a variety of actors from several countries using the national and international institutional frameworks

Between Dependency and Autonomy Joseph M. Grieco, 2023-11-15 Between Dependency and Autonomy offers a compelling exploration of India's evolving relationship with the international computer industry between 1960 and 1980 showcasing a significant shift in power dynamics Joseph M. Grieco presents a thorough analysis of how India increased its capacity to manage and negotiate with high tech multinational corporations challenging the long standing imbalance between developing countries and advanced capitalist enterprises Grieco's study not only documents this shift in power but also provides a critical evaluation of two competing schools of thought One perspective argues that developing countries can significantly improve their bargaining power with multinationals while the other suggests that these nations remain perpetually disadvantaged Using India's experience with computer firms as a pivotal case Between Dependency and Autonomy offers valuable insights into how developing nations can assert greater control in their interactions with global industries This groundbreaking work is essential reading for scholars policymakers and professionals interested in international relations economic development and the global technology landscape It highlights India's success in reshaping its relationship with multinational firms offering a blueprint for other developing countries seeking to enhance their autonomy in the international economic system This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1984 Science, High Technology and the Multinationals , 1986 Global Competition and Technology Robert Pearce, 1997-09-15 Multinationals are increasingly taking internationalised approaches to the ways in which they generate new knowledge and develop innovative new products from it in the pursuit of global competitiveness These new perspectives in MNEs technological behaviour open up important additional possibilities for those countries that play host to operations of these companies. This book analyses in detail the new dimensions in MNEs approach to global competitiveness and the role played in this by overseas R D units and discusses the implications of this for host countries' growth and welfare.
