Aging, Nutrition and Taste Jacqueline B. Marcus, 2019-04-15 Approximately 380 million people worldwide are 60 years of age or older This number is predicted to triple to more than 1 billion by 2025 Aging Nutrition and Taste Nutrition Food Science and Culinary Perspectives for Aging Tastefully provides research facts theories practical advice and recipes with full color photographs to feed the rapidly growing aging population healthfully This book takes an integrated approach utilizing nutrition food science and the culinary arts A significant number of aging adults may have taste and smell or chemosensory disorders and many may also be considered to be undernourished While this can be partially attributed to the behavioral physical and social changes that come with aging the loss or decline in taste and smell may be at the root of other disorders Aging adults may not know that these disorders exist nor what can be done to compensate This text seeks to fill the knowledge gap Aging Nutrition and Taste Nutrition Food Science and Culinary Perspectives for Aging Tastefully examines aging from three perspectives nutritional changes that affect health and well being food science applications that address age specific chemosensory changes compromised disease states and health and culinary arts techniques that help make food more appealing to diminishing senses Beyond scientific theory readers will find practical tips and techniques products recipes and menus to increase the desirability consumption and gratification of healthy foods and beverages as people age Presents information on new research and theories including a fresh look at calcium cholesterol fibers omega 3 fatty acids higher protein requirements vitamins C E D trace minerals and phytonutrients and others specifically for the aging population Includes easy to access and usable definitions in each chapter guidelines recommendations tables and usable bytes of information for health professionals those who work with aging populations and aging people themselves Synthesizes overall insights in overviews introductions and digest summaries of each chapter identifying relevant material from other chapters and clarifying their pertinence Reducing Dietary Sodium and Improving Human Health Jacqui Webster, 2018-05-18 This book is a printed edition of the Special Issue Reducing Dietary Sodium and Improving Human Health that was published in Nutrients The Sense of Taste Petra Schling, 2021-08-28 In this essential Petra Schling gives an overview of the current state of research on the topic of taste She regards taste as a sensory perception that allows us to distinguish essential food components from toxins What we eat depends not insignificantly on how we like it But how do we actually taste and what do we taste As omnivores we humans have a relatively wide range of taste receptors not only in our mouths which provide us with important information about our food Outside the mouth taste receptors serve our innate immune system to taste bacteria worms and other intruders We can and should rely on this Our sense of taste warns us of toxins and unwanted co inhabitants and can only be deceived to a very limited extent by sweeteners bitter blockers or similar tricks This Springer essential is a translation of the original German 1st edition essentials Der Geschmack by Petra Schling published by Springer Fachmedien Wiesbaden GmbH part of Springer Nature in 2021 The translation was done with the help of artificial intelligence machine translation by the service DeepL.com. A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content so that the book will read stylistically differently from a conventional translation. Springer Nature works continuously to further the development of tools for the production of books and on the related technologies to support the authors.

The Philosophy of eating Albert Jones Bellows, 1881      The Physiology of Taste Jules Arthur Harder, 1885
Eating and Drinking George Miller Beard, 1871      Encyclopedia of Perception E. Bruce Goldstein, 2010

Because of the ease with which we perceive many people see perception as something that just happens. However, even seemingly simple perceptual experiences involve complex underlying mechanisms which are often hidden from our conscious experience. These mechanisms are being investigated by researchers and theorists in fields such as psychology, cognitive science, neuroscience, computer science, and philosophy. A few examples of the questions posed by these investigations are: What do infants perceive? How does perception develop? What do perceptual disorders reveal about normal functioning? How can information from one sense such as hearing be affected by information from another sense such as vision? How is the information from all of our senses combined to result in our perception of a coherent environment? What are some practical outcomes of basic research in perception? These are just a few of the questions this encyclopedia will consider as it presents a comprehensive overview of the field of perception for students, researchers, and professionals in psychology, the cognitive sciences, neuroscience, and related medical disciplines such as neurology and ophthalmology.
