K-12 Schools Therese Keane,Andrew E. Fluck,2023-02-27 This book contains highly effective ways to teach coding and computational thinking skills throughout primary and secondary schooling It outlines a research informed path for students from birth to 18 years identifying key skills and learning activities Based on global perspectives and research at each stage it outlines how these findings can be applied in the classroom Teaching coding to students in K 12 has been a skillset that has been debated across educational jurisdictions globally for some time The book provides examples of schools that are teaching coding to students in engaging and relevant ways delivering well thought out compulsory curriculums Additionally it provides examples of schools where coding is not mandated in the curriculum and is taught in an ad hoc manner Through the full discussion of all of these varied examples the book presents both sides of the serious and ongoing debate in the field as to whether coding should be taught in an explicit way at all The increasing school of thought that teaching coding is a skill that is already obsolete and the focus should be on computational thinking is completely examined and presented In this book both sides of the argument as well as the specific meticulous research underlying each side are given equal weight The debate is a serious one and requires a clearly defined thematic response with evidence on all sides of the argument presented rationally This book does just that Created by carefully selected authors from around the world it will be a highly studied research reference Biotechnology Steven P. McGiffen,2005-03-20 Frankenfoods designer babies Dolly the Sheep and Raelian fantasists few subjects generate as much controversy and misinformation as biotechnology This book takes the reader behind the headlines to examine the new laws on genetic based technologies who s making them and why Steven P McGiffen offers a lucid analysis of the real implications of biotechnology legislation in the US and the EU and contrasts it with approaches to agricultural and medical biotech in the rest of the world He argues that the EU and America are removing decision making power from the people and their elected representatives Biotechnology regulation is a local manifestation of a global process of transferring power from the people to corporations from poor countries to rich ones from the public to the private He shows that biotechnology demands effective and democratic international decision making procedures and that we are very far from achieving them This is an indispensable guide for activists and anyone who wants to know more about how to control biotech regulation and how to resist handing control of our future to corporations

Seeing Students Learn Science National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education,Board on Testing and Assessment,Board on Science Education,Heidi Schweingruber,Alexandra Beatty,2017-04-24 Science educators in the United States are adapting to a new vision of how students learn science Children are natural explorers and their observations and intuitions about the world around them are the foundation for science learning Unfortunately the way science has been taught in the United States has not always taken advantage of those attributes Some students who successfully complete their K 12 science classes have not really had the chance to do science for themselves in ways that harness their natural curiosity and understanding of the world around them The introduction of the Next Generation Science Standards led many states schools and districts to change curricula instruction and professional development to align with the standards Therefore existing assessments whatever their purpose cannot be used to measure the full range of activities and interactions happening in science classrooms that have adapted to these ideas because they were not designed to do so Seeing Students Learn Science is meant to help educators improve their understanding of how students learn science and guide the adaptation of their instruction and approach to assessment It includes examples of innovative assessment formats ways to embed assessments in engaging classroom activities and ideas for interpreting and using novel kinds of assessment information It provides ideas and questions educators can use to reflect on what they can adapt right away and what they can work toward more gradually

Books in Print Supplement, 2002    Learning at the Practice Interface Neil Hooley, 2015-04-24 This book investigates professional practice at the interface of sociology and epistemology for progressive educational change. It suggests that orthodox sociology and sociology of education have not sufficiently analysed contemporary educational situations due primarily to the strength of the economic and educational influence of neoliberalism. In drawing upon key aspects of the work of Dewey, Freire, Bernstein and Bourdieu, a new reflexive sociology of knowledge is proposed that could potentially revolutionise public schooling and emancipate learning. This critical reconceptualisation of curriculum and teaching as well as the democratic inclusion of all children into structures of privileged and community knowledge opens up a new epistemological stage in the sociology of education worldwide. In confronting the contradiction between social marginalisation and educational expectations, Learning at the Practice Interface explores new approaches to education systems and knowledge production. Part A raises questions regarding knowledge, pedagogy and social justice that are central to schooling and which support values weakened by neoliberalism. These values include democracy, equity, community, collaboration and deference towards knowledge and culture not dependent on wealth and status. Part B explores practical issues related to how knowledge is engaged in the school curriculum. This discussion goes to the heart of learning at the practice interface and suggests that the lack of epistemological strategies based on sociological description has created serious estrangement from school knowledge for large numbers of students. Part C discusses a critical view of knowledge in relation to research, teaching and learning and the education profession generally. The need for a new reflexive sociology of knowledge is proposed to guide educational dialogue and action such that connections can be made between progressive sociology and epistemology in the interests of
