Imitating Christ in Magwi Todd D. Whitmore, 2019-01-24 Imitating Christ in Magwi An Anthropological Theology achieves two things First focusing on indigenous Roman Catholics in northern Uganda and South Sudan it is a detailed ethnography of how a community sustains hope in the midst of one of the most brutal wars in recent memory that between the Ugandan government and the rebel Lord's Resistance Army Whitmore finds that the belief that the spirit of Jesus Christ can enter into a person through such devotions as the Adoration of the Eucharist gave people the wherewithal to carry out striking works of mercy during the conflict and like Jesus of Nazareth to risk their lives in the process Traditional devotion leveraged radical witness Second Gospel Mimesis is a call for theology itself to be a practice of imitating Christ Such practice requires both living among people on the far margins of society Whitmore carried out his fieldwork in Internally Displaced Persons camps and articulating a theology that foregrounds the daily if extraordinary lives of people Here ethnography is not an add on to theological concepts rather ethnography is a way of doing theology and includes what anthropologists call thick description of lives of faith Unlike theology that draws only upon abstract concepts what Whitmore calls anthropological theology is consonant with the fact that God did indeed become human It may well involve risk to one's own life Whitmore had to leave Uganda for three years after writing an article critical of the President but that is what imitatio Christi sometimes requires Colin Gunton's Trinitarian Theology of Culture Andrew Picard, 2024-06-27 This book critically engages Colin Gunton's trinitarian theology of culture in the context of modern debates in trinitarian theology and argues against critics that Gunton's trinitarian theology remains defensible and fruitful for contemporary conversations in theology and culture The Supremacy of Man. A Suggestive Inquiry Respecting the Philosophy and Theology of the Future, 1876 began and where the United States manifest destiny was later achieved Here East met West where the dominant transatlantic rail route the Southern Pacific was completed in 1881 Here the West was won the longest chapter of the Indian Wars was fought not on the Great Plains but in the Southwest with a scorched earth strategy that went on for decades It s the past and present hub of immigrant America more immigrants have passed through El Paso than Ellis Island and where crucial battles for civil rights were fought with the city smashing through racial and ethnic discrimination before anywhere else in the nation The Crossing is a revelatory new history of El Paso that recasts the city as the unacknowledged cradle of American history where cultures have encountered each other for centuries and forged a thriving multi ethnic community far ahead of the rest of the nation As award winning El Paso native journalist Richard Parker charts the city holds not only the framework of our American story but also a model for a more diverse and flourishing country
