The Mast Cell:

The Mast Cell in Health and Disease Kaliner, 1992-10-29 Offers coverage of practical and theoretical implications of current research into mast cell biology emphasizing the role of the mast cell in human diseases The text covers all aspects of the mast cell from growth and differentiation to its function in such conditions as asthma and skin disease Mast Cells, Mediators and Disease Stephen T. Holgate, 2012-12-06 In 1879 Paul Ehrlich first described the mast cell as a tissue fixed cell containing many granules which when stained with basic dyes such as toluidine blue changed the colour spectrum of the dye in a process called metachromasy Since this early description pathologists physicians and pharmacologists have been fascinated by this cell on account of its central involvement in human allergic diseases Approximately four decades after Ehrlich's first description of the mast cell Prausnitz and Kustner reported their pioneer experiment demonstrating that the immediate skin wheal response to allergen could be passively transferred with serum They named the antigen specific serum factor reagin A further four and one half decades had to pass before the connection between the mast cell and reagin could be made with the identification of reagin as an immunoglobulin E by Johansson and Ishizaka and its unique property to bind with high affinity to specific receptors on mast cells and basophils Meanwhile in the 1920s Coca published a series of papers in which he described the clinical features of acute allergic responses and first used the term atopy This together with the fundamental pharmacological studies of Sir Henry Dale in identifying histamine as one mediator of the acute anaphylactic reaction provided the second approach which eventually linked the mast cell to allergic tissue reactions Indeed it was Best working in Dale's group who first showed that histamine was a chemical stored in mast cells The Mast Cells Hans Selye, 1965 The Mast Cell Domenico Ribatti, 2019-07-11 Mast cells MC are phylogenetically old cells which are distributed throughout the human organism MC are found in almost all of the major organs and tissues of the body particularly in association with connective tissue structures such as blood vessels lymphatic vessels and nerves and in proximity to surfaces that interface the external environment such as those of the respiratory and gastrointestinal system and the skin This selective accumulation at tissue sites where foreign material attempts to invade the host suggests that MC are among the first cells to initiate defensive mechanisms MC have long been recognized as key cells of type I hypersensitivity reactions Several lines of evidence however indicate that they not only express critical effector functions in classic IgE associated allergic disorders but also play important roles in host defense against parasites bacteria and perhaps even viruses Indeed it is now clear that MC can contribute to host defense in the context of either acquired or innate immune responses through the release of a myriad of pro inflammatory and immunoregulatory molecules and the expression of a wide spectrum of surface receptors for cytokines and chemokines Moreover there is growing evidence that MC exert distinct non immunological functions playing a relevant role in tissue homeostasis remodeling and fibrosis as well as in the processes of tissue angiogenesis The Mast Cell, 1979 The Mast Cells James F. Riley, 1959 The Mast-Cell System M.

Fernex,1968-04-11 Mast Cells Guha Krishnaswamy,David S. Chi,2008-02-04 A cutting edge collection of readily reproducible techniques for the isolation culture and study of activation and signaling in human mast cells These methods take advantage of the latest advances in molecular biology technology and information science They include methods for the identification of mast cells the development of mast cells in vitro the study of mast cell signaling and gene expression and the measurement of mast cell expression of inflammatory mediators Additional chapters cover methods for studying mast cell interactions with other cell types endothelial cells fibroblasts and B cells the roles of mast cells in host defense and mast cell apoptosis Mastocytosis and the Mast Cell F. Sagher,Z. Even-Paz,1967-06-26 The Mast Cell Activation Syndrome Manual June Corder,2021-08-10 Mast cells are allergy cells responsible for immediate allergic reactions They cause allergic symptoms by releasing products called mediators stored inside them or made by them In allergic reactions this release occurs when the allergy antibody which is present on the mast cell surfaces binds to proteins that cause allergies called allergens This triggering is called activation and the release of these mediators is called degranulation Some of these mediators are stored in granules in the mast cells and are released quickly and others are made slowly only after the cell has been triggered Mast cells can also be activated by other substances such as medications infections insect or reptile venoms These responses while not desirable are made by normal mast cells They are called secondary activation because they are due to secondary to external stimuli Sometimes mast cells become defective and release mediators because of abnormal internal signals Certain mutations in mast cells can produce populations of identical mast cells called clones that overproduce and spontaneously release mediators The spontaneous production of mediators in these clonal mast cell disorders is called primary activation These abnormal cells can grow uncontrollably and are unusually sensitive to activation in a condition called mastocytosis This guide will show you the symptoms of MCAS as well as drugs to take supplements and natural treatment to end MCAS GET YOUR COPY TODAY BY SCROLLING UP AND CLICKING BUY NOW TO GET YOUR COPY TODAY Mast Cells and Basophils Gianni Marone,Lawrence M. Lichtenstein,Federica J. Galli,2000-05-25 Mast Cells and Basophils will be essential reading for immunologists biochemists and medical researchers Detailed chapters cover all aspects of mast cell and basophil research from cell development proteases histamine cysteinyl leukotrienes physiology and pathology to the role of these cells in health and disease Chapters also discuss the clinical implications of histamine receptor antagonists Deciphering new molecular mechanisms of mast cell activation Ulrich Blank,Marc Benhamou,2014-03-20 Mast cells are tissue localized cells that play an important role in immunity and inflammation Following an offensive event they act as cellular sensors that via the activation of cell surface receptors launch a cellular response culminating in the release of a whole set of inflammatory mediators and products This response is initially destined to restore tissue homeostasis but in case of chronic injury or deregulation also promotes pathology To further understand the action of mast cells in their environmental context it is necessary to decipher the molecular mechanisms of their activation as well as the ensuing cellular responses This will allow identification of new strategies to promote their beneficial actions or at the contrary to interfere with their pathological consequences While in the past many studies have focused on responses engaged by high affinity IgE receptor because of its implication in the allergic response it has become clear that mast cells can be activated by multiple types of receptors initiating an intense molecular crosstalk between receptors and signaling pathways that can either synergize antagonize and in some cases produce new types of responses Mast cells can indeed react with an astounding diverse array of cellular responses that sometimes are engaged selectively This Research Topic will focus on selected articles that shed some new light on the molecular mechanisms of mast cell activation the possible crosstalk between signaling pathways and the ensuing cellular responses that allow mast cells to act as cellular sensors in tissues

Mast Cells United: A Holistic Approach to Mast Cell Activation Syndrome Amber Walker, 2019-03-16 At 542 pages and referencing over 1200 academic articles this book is the longest and most thorough resource on mast cell activation syndrome MCAS to date Allergies and anaphylaxis are on the rise alongside gastrointestinal problems skin issues fatigue orthopedic pain neurological symptoms and just about everything in between Patients are coming out of the woodwork with chronic debilitating often invisible illness Recent research estimates that 14% 17% of the population may have mast cell activation disease Much of the medical community has never heard of the condition and existing mainstream treatment tends to focus predominantly on pharmacological management However once a patient has reached a stable baseline there are a number of other individualized approaches that can guide patients to successfully address the underlying root issues This book includes 1 an in depth overview of mast cell activation disease with a focus on mast cell activation syndrome MCAS 2 a patient story describing life with MCAS 3 a detailed literature review and current hypotheses for disease origins 4 a practical guide of clinical considerations for diagnosis 5 a chapter devoted to comorbid conditions including Ehlers Danlos syndrome POTS Lyme disease and much more 6 several chapters devoted to mainstream and natural treatment options dietary considerations and strategies for holistic healing 7 content from dozens of interviews with prominent MCAS experts including specialists in allergy immunology hematology functional medicine naturopathy psychology nutrition gastroenterology physical therapy clinical research and more Whether a patient medical practitioner or family member friend this book empowers readers and provides patients with concrete steps to move forward in the diagnosis and comprehensive treatment of mast cell activation syndrome

The Mast Cells. [With a Bibliography.] Hans Selye, 1965

Human Mast Cells Ann M. Dvorak, 2012-12-06 This book looks in detail at human mast cells It includes a review of previous and current ultrastructural studies whereby the latter are illustrated with numerous high quality electron micrographs obtained from a large number of structural and functional experiments using highly purified isolated human lung mast cells Specifically the book provides criteria for the identification of human mast cells discusses the unique role in mast cell function of granules and lipid bodies describes the ultrastructural anatomy of two release reactions i e anaphylactic degranulation and piecemeal degranulation and defines the recovery cyclical and maturational properties of human mast cells All of these new morphological biochemical and functional studies are correlated with the author s wide experience in the visual properties of human mast cells as seen in biopsy material obtained from a diagnostic ultrastructural pathology service

Mast Cells in Allergic Diseases Hirohisa Saitō, Yoshimichi Okayama, 2005 The discovery of IgE and its association with mast cell histamine release provided the initial understanding of the role of mast cells in asthma and acute allergic reactions However mast cells are now recognized as tissue dwelling effector cells that play multiple roles not only in immediate type allergic reaction but also in innate immunity inflammation angiogenesis and tissue remodeling Mast cells produce a variety of lipid mediators chemokines cytokines and enzymes that may interact with inflammatory tissues such as asthmatic lungs This book focuses on the roles of mast cell products in allergic diseases and discusses strategies to regulate mast cell functions without perturbing their physiological roles It also aims at understanding mast cells at the system level by creating a detailed model of cell regulation which is expected to lead to highly mast cell specific i e efficient and safe drug targets Allergologists immunologists and pharmacologists interested in developing new drugs for allergies will benefit from these timely reviews

Mast Cells David B. Murray, 2013 Resident mast cells are uniquely positioned in multiple organ systems at either the tissue and or external environment or located near nerve endings and or blood vessels These locations allow the mast cell to serve as a sentinel and thus play a critical role in not only inflammatory situations to promote recruitment and infiltration of other immune cells but also homeostatic maintenance Although mast cells have several conserved characteristics the authors provide evidence that the micro environment influenced differences in the phenotype of tissue specific mast cells control the various responses to injury inflammation and remodelling This book brings together the work from experts across multiple tissue organ systems and inflammatory causes viral bacterial and auto immune to present the most up to date knowledge regarding the role of mast cells in these regulatory and disease events
