Excerpt from The Horseman's Manual Being a Treatise on Soundness the Law of Warranty and Generally on the Laws Relating to Horses The glorious uncertainty of the Law has long been proverbial 5 but to no one of its multitudinous branches is this saying more applicable than to the uncertainty of the law of warranty on the purchase and sale of horses About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works      The Horseman's Manual; Being a Treatise on Soundness, the Law of Warranty, and Generally on the Laws Relating to Horses Robert Smith Surtees, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1832 edition Excerpt CHAP V SALES BY AUCTION As the Judges have gradually become more strict in their constructions of general warranties of soundness and qualified ones do not answer the purpose of sellers as they necessarily diminish the prices obtained sales by public auction where the doctrine of caveat emptor let the buyer beware well applies have gained ground While they embrace all the advantages of sales by private contract they get rid of the difficulty of being obliged to specify all defects and moreover the time that shall be considered a reasonable trial is more accurately defined The owner of a good horse has the same advantage of warranting him sound as he has on a sale by private contract without incurring the risk of having him returned at the end of five or six weeks or perhaps as many months unless indeed it can be proved that the cause of the breach of warranty existed at the time of the sale while the less fortunate owner of a bad horse puts him up for public competition and though he may expatiate as largely as ever he likes upon his good points still if he does not warrant him he is not bound to mention any of his imperfections There is a species of praise which all sellers are considered at liberty to adopt in disposing of their goods In common parlance it is called purling and when practiced in the selling of horses is termed cjauring or singing their praise The rule of the civil law was semplex commendatio non obligat And where the seller merely made use of those expressions which are usual to sellers who praise at random the goods they are desirous to dispose of the buyer who ought not to have relied upon such vague expressions could not procure the sale to be dissolved upon any such
