The Huaqiao Warriors:

The Huaqiao Warriors Yuk-wai Yung Li,1995-01-01 Among the extremely limited English language literature on the Chinese resistance movement in the Philippines during the Japanese occupation this book is unique in making use of documents from the United States National Archives supplemented by memorials and articles recently published in China and the Philippines While the reliability of these original sources is questionable the difficulty of interpreting these sources was dealt with openly and effort was made to compare contradictory accounts objectively Meanwhile the characteristics of the Chinese resistance movement were summarized in its historical social context and the long term effect of the resistance movement on the Chinese community in the Philippines was addressed The book thus fills an important gap in Philippine historiography on the Second World War and in the understanding of the Philippine Chinese community and the effect of Japanese occupation upon it

The Chinese Question Caroline S. Hau,2014-02 The rising strength of mainland China has spurred a revival of Chineseness in the Philippines Perceived during the Cold War era as economically dominant politically disloyal and culturally different the Chinese presented themselves as an integral part of the Filipino imagined community Today as Filipinos seek associations with China many of them see the local Chinese community as key players in East Asian regional economic development With the revaluing of Chineseness has come a repositioning of Chinese racial and cultural identity Philippine mestizos people of mixed ancestry form an important subgroup of the Filipino elite but their Chineseness was occluded as they disappeared into the emergent Filipino nation In the twentieth century mestizos defined themselves and based claims to privilege on white ancestry but mestizos are now actively reclaiming their Chinese heritage At the same time so called pure Chinese are parlaying their connections into cultural social symbolic or economic capital and leaders of mainland Chinese state companies have entered into politico business alliances with the Filipino national elite As the meanings of Chinese and

Filipino evolve intractable contradictions are appearing in the concepts of citizenship and national belonging Through an examination of cinematic and literary works The Chinese Question shows how race class ideology nationality territory sovereignty and mobility are shaping the discourses of national integration regional identification and global cosmopolitanism

The Overseas Chinese (huaqiao) Project Shelly Chan, 2009 This dissertation examines the history of the making of the overseas Chinese huaqiao in China from 1890 to 1966 Emerged only in the 1890s the term huaqiao referred broadly to Chinese sojourning from China during the course of an expansive project to incorporate Chinese abroad into the Chinese nation The project was spearheaded in the late nineteenth century by diplomats reformers and revolutionaries all of whom operated overseas and came to view huaqiao as a vital resource This transnational vision of the nation remained central to Republican and Communist governance until the 1960s But the huaqiao project itself was marked by constant change and vast heterogeneity producing friction in many instances that upset the imagined union of China and Chinese abroad As it turned out huaqiao were not simply Chinese who lived elsewhere waiting to be awakened and led by the homeland Rather they emerged as a congeries of unruly elements encompassing intellectuals who brought conflicting ideas about nation and culture based on colonial experiences abroad in the 1920s and 1930s transnational communities that posed a seeming threat to domestic political order in the 1950s and returnees who came to Chinese shores from all backgrounds and were highly critical of government policies in the 1950s and 1960s Troubled declared obsolete in state discourses both in China and beyond during the 1960s the huaqiao project is nonetheless unfinished Revived and active is the notion that China is the cultural and ethnic homeland of Chinese globally as expressed in the new terms huaren persons of Chinese culture and huayi persons of Chinese descent The huaqiao project suggests that the making of an overseas Chinese identity always intersected with dilemmas of opportunity and belonging facing communities and nations in a globalizing world The huaqiao project is unfinished because these dilemmas were not and are unlikely to be easily resolved
