Stone Of Terror:

Phoenix Rising Donald G. Lett, Donald G Lett Jr, 2008-02 In an age when the supply of gasoline to feed this modern American society has become both more expensive and more scarce questions are being pondered. Inquires like How can a modern society scale back its dependence on gasoline as a motive source? Are there genuine alternative power sources? Are they the answer to a growing crisis? Recent announcements of hybrids like those from Honda, Toyota and Ford have really brought attention to this issue. Hybrids that use both gasoline engines and electric motors. Really though alternative power sources have been around for as long as the automobile has been. The battle between and among the steam car, the electric and the gas car was fought out in the first couple of decades of the twentieth century. This book explores the ins and outs of that battle. A struggle from which the gasoline car emerged completely victorious. To such an extent that steam cars and electric cars virtually disappeared from the scene for many decades. We will look over all three alternatives exploring their advantages and disadvantages. We will also look over the obstacles to the steamers and the electrics. Barriers that still exist to a certain extent. Handicaps that caused their disappearance in the first place.

Herman Melville and the Politics of the Inhuman Michael Jonik, 2018-02-22 Studies of the writing of Herman Melville are often divided among those that address his political, historical or biographical dimensions and those that offer creative theoretical readings of his texts. In Herman Melville and the Politics of the Inhuman Michael Jonik offers a series of nuanced and ambitious philosophical readings of Melville that unite these varied approaches. Through a careful reconstruction of Melville's interaction with philosophy, Jonik argues that Melville develops a notion of the inhuman after Spinoza's radically non anthropocentric and relational thought. Melville's own political philosophy in turn actively disassembles differences between humans and nonhumans and the animate and inanimate. Jonik has us rethink not only how we read Melville but also how we understand our deeply inhuman condition.

Reisner and Allan Grove were sitting in the back seat. I got a glimpse of Reisner's face in the rearview mirrort His features had always been gaunt and pallid Now in the faintly reflected moonlight his face was the bleached white of a naked skull There s the Herron place Reisner said his voice so low that it was a husking whisper Now what I meant I stared out across the narrow moonlit valley that separated us from the hilltop estate of the late Gordon Herron Tiny ripples of dread ran along my spine Alice shivered and her slim fingers were cold in mine as she huddled closer against my shoulder Since I had last seen the isolated hill country home of Gordon Herron it had changed insidiously The four of us sat staring across the valley in taut silence I believe the same thought was in all our minds the memory of Gordon Herron s recent death the weird horror of the manner in which he had died The Elves Ludwig Tieck,1871
