Challenging the Growth Machine Barbara Ferman, 1996 Economic development and urban growth are the contested grounds of urban politics Business elites and politicians tend to forge pro growth coalitions centered around downtown development while progressive and neighborhood activists counter with a more balanced approach that features a strong neighborhood component Urban politics is often shaped by this conflict which has intellectual as well as practical dimensions In some cities neighborhood interests have triumphed in others the pro growth agenda has prevailed In this illuminating comparative study Barbara Ferman demonstrates why neighborhood challenges to pro growth politics were much more successful in Pittsburgh than they were in Chicago Operating largely in the civic arena Pittsburgh's neighborhood groups encountered a political culture and institutional structure conducive to empowering neighborhood progressivism in housing and economic development policymaking In contrast the pro growth agenda in Chicago was challenged in the electoral arena which was dominated by machine ward based politicians who regarded any independent neighborhood organizing as a threat Consequently neighborhood demands for policymaking input were usually thwarted Besides revealing why the development policies of two important American cities diverged Ferman's unique comparative approach to this issue significantly expands the scope of urban analysis Among other things it provides the first serious study to incorporate the civic sector neighborhood politics as an important component of urban regimes Ferman also emphasizes institutional and cultural factors often ignored or relegated to residual roles in other studies and expounds on their influence in shaping local politics and policy To add an analytical and normative dimension to urban analysis she focuses on the non elite actors not just the economic and political elites who compose governing coalitions Ultimately Ferman takes a more holistic and balanced view of large cities than is typical for urban studies as she argues that neighborhoods are an important integral part of what cities are and can be For that reason especially her work will have a profound impact upon our understanding of urban politics

Gender in Third World Politics Georgina Waylen, 1996 This book puts forward a gendered analysis of third world politics It uses a wide definition of the political to examine both high politics and political activity at the grassroots focussing particularly on women's organizations It also examines the impact of policy and politics on gender relations and on different groups of women After a general discussion of the major theoretical questions involved in the study of gender in third world politics and the nature of the third world and development the analysis is developed through the indepth study of different political formations These are colonialism revolution authoritarianism and democracy and democratization and uses examples from much of the third world Gender in Third World Politics is the only book to provide comprehensive coverage of gender in third world politics provides a gendered analysis of both high politics and different women's political activity at the grassroots weaves together material from a wide range of disciplines such as politics sociology history development studies and women's studies

Policy Transfer in Global Perspective Mark Evans, 2004 The world of public policy is becoming increasingly small due to dramatic changes in global communications political and economic institutional structures and to nation states themselves This book evaluates the implications of these changes and challenges for both the study and the practice of policy transfer and provides a unique understanding of the relationship between systemic globalizing forces and the increasing scope and intensity of policy transfer activity It provides an explanation of policy transfer as a process of organizational learning an insight into how and why such processes are studied by policy scientists an evaluation of its use by policy practitioners and the first published collection of policy transfer case studies between developed countries from developed to developing countries and from developing countries
