The image shows a traditional stone cottage with a garden in front. The cottage is made of light-colored stone and has several windows with white frames. A large window is on the upper level, and a smaller one is on the lower level. To the right of the main entrance, there is a porch supported by white pillars. In the foreground, there is a gravel path leading to the house. To the left of the path, there is a large, leafy green bush. To the right of the path, there is a potted plant with purple flowers. The overall scene is peaceful and suggests a rural or semi-rural setting.

perhaps been guided in their walks through life by no very distinct principles still there had been with them so much of adherence to a sacred law that no acre of the property had ever been parted from the hands of the existing squire Some futile attempts had been made to increase the territory as indeed had been done by Kit Dale the father of Christopher Dale who will appear as our squire of Allington when the persons of our drama are introduced Old Kit Dale who had married money had bought outlying farms a bit of ground here and a bit there talking as he did so much of political influence and of the good old Tory cause But these farms and bits of ground had gone again before our time To them had been attached no religion When old Kit had found himself pressed in that matter of the majority of the Nineteenth Dragoons in which crack regiment his second son made for himself quite a career he found it easier to sell than to save seeing that that which he sold was his own and not the patrimony of the Dales At his death the remainder of these purchases had gone Family arrangements required completion and Christopher Dale required ready money The outlying farms flew away as such new purchases had flown before but the old patrimony of the Dales remained untouched as it had ever remained
