

SOCIAL CONSTRUCT

A social construct is a concept or category that has socially and culturally mediated meaning. They are concepts that generate their meaning through social and cultural worldviews.

SOCIAL CONSTRUCTIONISM VS CULTURAL RELATIVISM

Cultural relativism makes a judgment that all cultures are equal. It often leads to moral relativism, which is the suggestion that there is no objective morality in society.

The study of social constructs doesn't attempt to make judgments about the morality of different cultures. Rather, it simply explores how different cultures come to their conclusions about ideas and people.

Social Construction in Context Kenneth J Gergen, 2001-04-03 This latest book by one of the world's leading protagonists in the field will be welcomed not just by psychologists but by students, academics and professionals interested in social constructionism across a wide range of subjects. Social Construction in Context explores the potentials of social constructionist theory when placed in diverse intellectual and practical contexts. It demonstrates the achievements of social constructionism and what it can now offer various fields of inquiry both academic, professional and applied given the proliferation of the theory across the social sciences and humanities. First order issues of concern within the academic world: objectivity, truth, power and ideology are now being augmented by widespread developments in practice: therapeutic, pedagogical, organizational and political. This book looks closely at these developments and examines both the positive potentials and limitations of social constructionist theory when applied to a variety of domains. It has been written in an accessible and scholarly manner making it suitable for a wide ranging readership. Social Construction in Context Kenneth J Gergen, 2001-05-23 This latest book by one of the world's leading protagonists in the field will be welcomed not just by psychologists but by students, academics and professionals interested in social constructionism across a wide range of subjects. Social Construction in Context explores the potentials of social constructionist theory when placed in diverse intellectual and practical contexts. It demonstrates the achievements of social constructionism and what it can now offer various fields of inquiry both academic, professional and applied given the proliferation of the theory across the social sciences and humanities. The Social Construction of Landscapes in Games Dennis Edler, Olaf Kühne, Corinna Jenal, 2022-06-25 The book is dedicated to a compilation of diverse and creative landscapes which occur in games. Being part of a game setting these landscapes trigger social construction processes in specific ways. A selection of twenty-four research articles addresses the social constructions of landscapes represented in analogue, digital and hybrid game formats as well as their theoretical framing and future perspectives. The Social Construction of SARS John Henry Powers, Xiaosui Xiao, 2008 When the SARS virus began its spread from southern China around the world in spring 2003 it caught regional and international health officials by surprise. The SARS epidemic itself lasted for only a few months whereas its treatment in communicative terms keeps providing us with important lessons that can prepare us all for the much larger pandemic that many are predicting will eventually occur. While the medical aspects of SARS are now relatively well understood the discursive rhetorical dimensions are much less so. As an international epidemic SARS arrived in a number of distinctive societies with the result that different communities handled the crisis in different ways, some far more effectively than others. Accordingly the 12 chapters in The Social Construction of SARS are studies of how a major health related crisis was understood and dealt with from a communicative perspective in such diverse places as Hong Kong, mainland China, Singapore, Taiwan, Canada and the United States during the SARS outbreak. Image, Reality and Media Construction Fengmin

Yan,2019-09-24 This book explores how news media construct social issues and events and thereby convey certain perceptions within the scope of framing theory By operationalizing media framing as a process of interpretation through defining problem diagnosing causes making moral judgments and suggesting solutions the book proposes a systematic and transparent approach to images in news discourse Based on a frame analysis it examines how German news media framed a list of China related issues and events and thereby conveyed particular beliefs and opinions on this country Moreover it investigates whether there were dominant patterns of interpretation and the extent to which diverse views were evident by comparing two major daily newspapers with opposite political orientations the FAZ and the taz Motivated by the relationship between image and reality the book explores image formation and persistence from media construction of meaning and human cognitive complexity in perceiving others Media select certain issues and events and then interpret them from particular perspectives A variety of professional and non professional factors behind news making may result in biased representations In addition from a social psychological perspective inaccurate perceptions of foreign cultures may arise from categorical thinking biased processing of stimulus information intergroup conflicts of interest and in group favoritism Accordingly whether media coverage deviates from reality is not the main concern of this book instead it emphasizes the underlying logics upon which the conclusions and judgments were drawn It therefore contributes to a rational understanding of Western discourse and holds practical implications for both Chinese public diplomacy and a more constructive role of news media in promoting the understanding of others

The Social Construction of Public Administration Jong S. Jun,2012-02-01 In this conceptual guided tour of contemporary public administration Jong S Jun challenges the limitations of the discipline which he argues make it inadequate for understanding today s complex human phenomena Drawing on examples and case studies from both Eastern and Western countries he emphasizes critical and interpretive perspectives as a counterforce to the instrumental technical rationality that reduces the field to structural and functionalist views of management He also emphasizes the idea of democratic social construction to transcend the field s reliance on conventional pluralist politics Jun stresses that public administrators and institutions must create opportunities for sharing and learning among organizational members and must facilitate interactive processes between public administrators and citizens so that the latter can voice their problems and opinions The future role of public administrators will be to transcend the limitations of the management and governing of modern public administration and to explore ways of constructing socially meaningful alternatives through communicative action and the participation of citizens
