Realizing Complex Integrated Systems Anthony P. Ambler,John W. Sheppard,2025-02-20 The creation of complex integrated systems is in itself complex It requires immense planning and a large team of people with diverse backgrounds based in dispersed geographical locations and countries supposedly working to a coordinated schedule and cost The systems engineering task is not new but recent scales most definitely are The world is now capable of designing and manufacturing systems whose complexity was not considered possible 10 years ago While many are trained to think in terms of a complete system where everything is designed and produced by a single project team today such systems involve integrating subsystems and components which are also complex that have been developed by other project teams Inevitably this introduces additional complexities involving elements out of the direct control of the project but which are essential to its overall success In addition to traditional systems engineering topics of hardware and software design testability and manufacturability there are wider issues to be contemplated project planning communication language an issue for international teams units of measure imperial vs metric used across members of the team supply chains pandemics military action and natural disasters legal issues based on place of production and sale the ethics associated with target use and the threat of cyberattack This book is the first attempt to bring many of these issues together to highlight the complexities that need to be considered in modern system design It is neither exhaustive nor comprehensive but it gives pointers to the topics for the reader to follow up on in more detail

Engineers American Society of Civil Engineers, 1899 Vols 29 30 include papers of the International Engineering Congress Chicago 1893 v 54 includes papers of the International Engineering Congress St Louis 1904 Technological Forecasting for Decisionmaking Joseph Paul Martino, 1972 Surveyor and Municipal and County Engineer, 1898 The Engineer, 1894 Managing Technology in Society Arie Rip, Thomas J. Misa, J. W. Schot, 1995 A fateful conceptual gap separates the policy makers and managers charged with promoting technology and the risk and technology assessors responsible for controlling it This hampers the effective use of many new technologies and prevents the development of others The strategy of constructive technology assessment CTA addresses this gap through facilitating societal learning processes and proposing a shared responsibility for the promotion and control of new technologies Combining analysis of both cases and concepts Managing Technology in Society confronts the underdevelopment of innovative potential for achieving goals of wealth sustainability and safety Factors that block change as well as conditions for successful learning are identified in a wide ranging selection of cases that encompass biotechnology clean technologies information and medical technologies The contributors build on the convergence of recent theories on technical change within economics sociology and the history of technology to offer suggestions for CTA action and so create a new paradigm of managing technology in society BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved
