SRM Abnormal Psychology David S. Holmes,1990-10      Handbook of Abnormal Psychology Hans Jurgen Eysenck,1973

Psychological Explanations of Crime David P. Farrington,1994 This work offers a fundamental analysis of the psychological factors that underlie crime and criminal behaviour Among the topics addressed are antisocial personality the Eysenck personality theory low intelligence low attainment and neuropsychological deficit and unpopularity      Journal of Indian Psychology ,2003      Proceedings of the British Psychological Society British Psychological Society,2004      The Psychology of Consciousness G. William Farthing,1992 The first book on consciousness that offers sufficient breadth and depth to serve as a stand alone text for courses on consciousness Also ideally organized as a supplement for instructors who discuss topics of consciousness in other courses Journey into the fascinating world of human consciousness with this comprehensive survey that covers topics of consciousness from both a natural science and cognitive psychology viewpoint Based on the belief that consciousness is a natural phenomenon and product of the brain s functioning Dr Farthing s captivating book emphasizes systematic research and theoretical interpretations and also discusses clinical applications and pertinent conceptual and philosophical issues      Perceptual Cognitive Development ,1965      Circadian Impact of

Psychosocial Factors in Depression Patricia Lynn Haynes,2003 Severe life events increase the risk for major depression and depression is associated with disrupted sleep However the impact of life stress on sleep has not been explored in individuals with unipolar depression This project examined the proposed association between stressful life events and sleep using the social rhythm hypothesis of depression Specifically I tested whether participants with depression when compared to normal controls have a less stable social rhythms i e less consistent daily routines that are more reactive to life stress b a greater disruption of daily sleep and activity following life stress c greater reactivity of sleep and daytime activity to disrupted social rhythms d less light exposure disrupted sleep and increased daytime motor activity Thirty nine normal controls and 39 depressed individuals participated in the study Over the course of two weeks project staff gathered actigraphic estimates of motor activity and light exposure prospective daily measures of social interactions and interview information about life events occurring in the previous 4 months Data were analyzed by logistic and linear regression techniques Results demonstrated that the presence of an event hypothesized to disrupt social rhythms in the last four months correlated with disrupted sleep continuity in depressed individuals but not in normal controls In depressed individuals only decreased sleep continuity was associated with fewer daily structured activities especially those activities with others actively involved Individuals experiencing decreased sleep continuity low daytime light exposure high in bed nighttime light exposure and a later activity acrophase had an increased likelihood of being depressed In addition individuals with more variable routines characterized by less active involvement with others were likely to be depressed These findings are consistent with the proposed model in that individuals with depression experience more sleep disruption in response to life stress than non depressed individuals At the same time daily routine does not appear to mediate the relationship between life stress and sleep Future studies are needed to determine whether this sensitivity to life stress precedes the development of depression thereby indicating a potential risk factor or etiological mechanism in the development of this disorder
