Structure Of Justification:

The Structure of Justification Robert Audi, 1993-10-29 This collection of papers transcends two of the most widely misunderstood positions in philosophy foundationalism and coherentism A Theory of System Justification John T. Jost, 2020-07-14 A leading psychologist explains why nearly all of us including many of those who are persecuted and powerless so often defend the social systems that cause misery and injustice Why do we so often defend the very social systems that are responsible for injustice and exploitation In A Theory of System Justification John Jost argues that we are motivated to defend the status quo because doing so serves fundamental psychological needs for certainty security and social acceptance We want to feel good not only about ourselves and the groups to which we belong but also about the overarching social structure in which we live even when it hurts others and ourselves Jost lays out the wide range of evidence for his groundbreaking theory and examines its implications for our communities and our democracy Drawing on twenty five years of research he provides an accessible account of system justification theory and its insights System justification helps to explain deep contradictions including the feeling among some women that they don't deserve the same salaries as men and the tendency of some poor people to vote for policies that increase economic inequality The theory illuminates the most pressing social and political issues of our time why has it been so hard to combat anthropogenic climate change as well as some of the most intimate why do some black children prefer white dolls to black ones and why do some people stay in bad relationships Jost's theory has far reaching implications and he offers numerous insights that political activists and social justice advocates can use to promote change Social and Psychological Bases of Ideology and System Justification John T. Jost, Aaron C. Kay, Hulda Thorisdottir, 2009-03-11 This book is the first of its kind bringing together formerly independent lines of research on ideology and system justification Leading scientists and scholars from psychology sociology political science law and organizational behavior present their cutting edge theorizing and research on such topics as the social personality cognitive and motivational antecedents and consequences of adopting liberal versus conservative ideologies the social and psychological functions served by political and religious ideologies and the myriad ways in which people defend bolster and justify the social systems they inhabit The Groundwork of a System of Evangelical Lutheran Theology Samuel Sprecher, 1879 A dictionary of the leading technical and trade terms of architectural design and building construction, by the editor of 'The Technical journal and industrial self-instructor Ward, Lock and co, Ltd, 1891 A System of Synthetic Philosophy Herbert Spencer, 1873 Psycholinguistics: Structures and processes John Morton, John C. Marshall, 1977 The Structure and Grounding of Epistemic Justification William A. Roche, 2006 Abstract I articulate and defend a new version of the coherence theory of epistemic justification It is new in part because unlike traditional varieties of coherentism it is externalist viz it implies that justification supervenes in part on things that are neither mental nor supervenient on the mental The theory overall has three distinguishing components First there is an explanationist component which says that an inductive inferential relation is cogent only if it is explanatorily virtuous In this respect my account is in the spirit of both William Lycan's brand of coherentism and the brand oft attributed to Gilbert Harman and Wilfrid Sellars Second there is a meta perspectivalist component saying for starters that S has good reason for thinking that p obtains only if from S's perspective it is likely that he is connected to p This when fully spelled out has the result that S's belief system is coherent only if S has a view as to how he is connected to the outside world and according to which the mechanisms involved e.g. vision are reliable And third there is a veridicality component which requires that S's reasons be true and that S's reasons for his reasons be true and so on This together with the meta perspectivalist component requires that S be correct as to how he is reliably connected to the outside world This is what makes my position externalist I develop and argue positively for each of these three distinguishing components thereby refuting my theory's chief rivals in the coherentist camp I also argue against the three standard objections to coherentism the Alternative Systems Objection the Isolation Objection and the Experience Objection Take the Experience Objection for instance It charges that foundationalist theories are superior to coherentist theories because unlike coherentist theories they allow a role for experiences e.g. visual experiences in justification I argue that initial appearances notwithstanding experiences are unfit to serve as reasons either for or against beliefs The ultimate payoff is philosophical understanding of the structure and grounding of justification an understanding that is that justification is coherentist in structure and externalist in grounding

The Structure of Empirical Knowledge Laurence Bonjour, 1988-03-15 How must our knowledge be systematically organized in order to justify our beliefs There are two options the solid securing of the ancient foundationalist pyramid or the risky adventure of the new coherentist raft For the foundationalist like Descartes each piece of knowledge can be stacked to build a pyramid Not so argues Laurence Bonjour What looks like a pyramid is in fact a dead end a blind alley Better by far to choose the raft Here Bonjour sets out the most extensive antifoundationalist argument yet developed The first part of the book offers a systematic exposition of foundationalist views and formulates a general argument to show that no variety of foundationalism provides an acceptable account of empirical justification In the second part he explores a coherence theory of empirical knowledge and argues that a defensible theory must incorporate an adequate conception of observation The book concludes with an account of the correspondence theory of empirical truth and an argument that systems of empirical belief which satisfy the coherentist standard of justification are also likely to be true
