Sims, Ian G.W. Corns, Karel Klinka, 2012-12-06 Ecological Land Classification ELC refers to the description of land resources at a range of spatial resolutions i.e. global to local and for a range of purposes or values The emerging science of ELC is in fact a very carefully integrated blend of vegetation and earth sciences climatology cartography and ecology with a range of new technologies and methodologies including computer based geographic information systems remote sensing and simulation modelling This publication defines the current state of the art of ELC It provides particular insight into the role of ELC in current and future forest resource planning and management and emphasizes its application and usefulness at various spatial scales for a variety of geographic locations and under a range of management scenarios constraints The book is an invaluable and substantial reference source about the current trends in ELC and will be of particular value to ecologists foresters geographers resource managers wildlife biologists GIS and remote sensing specialists educators and students Forestry Research West, 1993 The Analytic Hierarchy Process in Natural Resource and Environmental Decision Making Daniel L. Schmoldt, 2001-06-30 Decision making in land management involves preferential selection among competing alternatives Often such choices are difficult owing to the complexity of the decision context Because the analytic hierarchy process AHP developed by Thomas Saaty in the 1970s has been successfully applied to many complex planning resource allocation and priority setting problems in business energy health marketing natural resources and transportation more applications of the AHP in natural resources and environmental sciences are appearing regularly This realization has prompted the authors to collect some of the important works in this area and present them as a single volume for managers and scholars Because land management contains a somewhat unique set of features not found in other
