String Searching Algorithms Graham A Stephen, 1994-10-17 String searching is a subject of both theoretical and practical interest in computer science This book presents a bibliographic overview of the field and an anthology of detailed descriptions of the principal algorithms available The aim is twofold on the one hand to provide an easy to read comparison of the available techniques in each area and on the other to furnish the reader with a reference to in depth descriptions of the major algorithms Topics covered include methods for finding exact and approximate string matches calculating edit distances between strings finding common sequences and finding the longest repetitions within strings For clarity all the algorithms are presented in a uniform format and notation

A Brief History of String Theory Dean Rickles, 2014-02-18 During its forty year lifespan string theory has always had the power to divide being called both a theory of everything and a theory of nothing Critics have even questioned whether it qualifies as a scientific theory at all This book adopts an objective stance standing back from the question of the truth or falsity of string theory and instead focusing on how it came to be and how it came to occupy its present position in physics An unexpectedly rich history is revealed with deep connections to our most well established physical theories Fully self contained and written in a lively fashion the book will appeal to a wide variety of readers from novice to specialist

Text-based intelligent Systems Paul S. Jacobs, 2014-02-25 The symposium on which this volume was based brought together approximately fifty scientists from a variety of backgrounds to discuss the rapidly emerging set of competing technologies for exploiting a massive quantity of textual information This group was challenged to explore new ways to take advantage of the power of on line text A billion words of text can be more generally useful than a few hundred logical rules if advanced computation can extract useful information from streams of text and help find what is needed in the sea of available material While the extraction task is a hot topic for the field of natural language processing and the retrieval task is a solid aspect in the field of information retrieval these two disciplines came together at the symposium and have been cross breeding more than ever The book is organized in three parts The first group of papers describes the current set of natural language processing techniques used for interpreting and extracting information from quantities of text The second group gives some of the historical perspective methodology and current practice of information retrieval work the third covers both current and emerging applications of these techniques This collection of readings should give students and scientists alike a good idea of the current techniques as well as a general concept of how to go about developing and testing systems to handle volumes of text

An Introduction to Text-to-Speech Synthesis Thierry Dutoit, 2001-11-30 This is the first book to treat two areas of speech synthesis natural language processing and the inherent problems it presents for speech synthesis and digital signal processing with an emphasis on the concatenative approach The text guides the reader through the material in a step by step easy to follow way The book will be of interest to researchers and students in phonetics and speech communication in both academia and industry

A Primer for Deterministic and

Stochastic Drill-String Vibration Analyses Mark Iosifovich Freidlin, Jean-François Le Gall, 1992 This is the first book dedicated to oil well drilling vibrations The objectives are to provide an exposition to important concepts in drilling and drilling dynamics and to describe both deterministic and probabilistic solution techniques that may be used to gain insight in downhole vibrations These considerations are addressed based on a collection of drilling technical publications an exhaustive literature review Appendices include a detailed description of the mode superposition method and a technique to generate trivariate random processes with digital filters
