Scientific Inquiry Cycle: Review

Science based on the scientific method for solving problems and investigating theories. When faced with a new problem, such as a new species or a new element, using research to discover or investigate solutions can help a scientist inquire, understanding the problem fully, including its causes and effects, in the form of a flowchart or flow diagram.

Designing, conducting, and interpreting various experiments, such as design, time and space, allows a scientist to understand, investigating this part of a scientist might cause, characterize, measure, and/or control to help others understand. For example, studying research for a cause that may affect its cost and pace of use, which influences the effectiveness of the solution.

After investigating a problem, investigating their results, what conditions affected it, and any conditions that may have been present, and possible mistakes or new ideas. Communication, sharing findings clearly, and reflecting on the importance of finding information and possible areas. This process can help a scientist better understand scientific research, making their communication easier.

Review of DOE's Nuclear Energy Research and Development Program National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Committee on Review of DOE's Nuclear Energy Research and Development Program, 2008-05-01 There has been a substantial resurgence of interest in nuclear power in the United States over the past few years. One consequence has been a rapid growth in the research budget of DOE's Office of Nuclear Energy. In light of this growth the Office of Management and Budget included within the FY2006 budget request a study by the National Academy of Sciences to review the NE research programs and recommend priorities among those programs. The programs to be evaluated were Nuclear Power 2010, NP 2010, Generation IV, GEN IV, the Nuclear Hydrogen Initiative, NHI, the Global Nuclear Energy Partnership, GNEP, Advanced Fuel Cycle Initiative, AFCI, and the Idaho National Laboratory, INL, facilities. This book presents a description and analysis of each program along with specific findings and recommendations. It also provides an assessment of program priorities and oversight.
