CHINATOWN CONNECTION

CHINATOWN - THE BALTIMORE 100

On March 10, 1937, 100 Chinatown residents gathered at the Chinese Laundry on Franklin Street to protest the recent bombing of the Chinese laundry on Franklin Street. The group, which included men, women, and children, marched to the office of the Baltimore Sun newspaper, where they presented a petition demanding justice. The protest was organized by the Chinese Laundry Association, which had been formed in 1935 to protect the interests of Chinese laundry workers. The protest was a success, and the newspaper promised to investigate the bombing. The protest was a significant moment in the history of the Chinese community in Baltimore, and it helped to raise awareness of the discrimination and violence faced by Chinese Americans.

Reconfiguring Class, Gender, Ethnicity and Ethics in Chinese Internet Culture Haomin Gong,Xin

Yang,2017-02-17 New information technologies have to an unprecedented degree come to reshape human relations identities and communities both online and offline As Internet narratives including online fiction poetry and films reflect and represent ambivalent politics in China the Chinese state wishes to enable the formidable soft power of this new medium whilst at the same time handling the ideological uncertainties it inevitably entails This book investigates the ways in which class gender ethnicity and ethics are reconfigured complicated and enriched by the closely intertwined online and offline realities in China It combs through a wide range of theories on Internet culture intellectual history and literary film and cultural studies and explores a variety of online cultural materials including digitized spoofing microblog fictions micro films online fictions web dramas photographs flash mobs popular literature and films These materials have played an important role in shaping the contemporary cultural scene but have so far received little critical attention Here the authors demonstrate how Chinese Internet culture has provided a means to intervene in the otherwise monolithic narratives of identity and community Offering an important contribution to the rapidly growing field of Internet studies this book will also be of interest to students and scholars of Chinese culture literary and film studies media and communication studies and Chinese society

The Chinatown Connection Owen Park,Don Herron,1977-02-01 The Chinese Internet Qingning Wang,2020-11-01 This book discusses the use of the internet in China the complicated power relations in online political communications and the interactions and struggles between the government and the public over the use of the internet It argues that there is a semi structured online public sphere in which there is a certain amount of equal and liberal political communication but that the online political debates are also limited by government control and censorship as well as by inequality and exclusions and moreover that the government rarely engages in the political debates Based on extensive original research and considering specific debates around particular issues the book analyses how Chinese net users debate about political issues how they problematize the government s actions and policies what language they use what online discourses are produced and how the debates and online discourses are limited Overall the book provides a rich picture of the current state of online political communication in China

Chinese Communication Theory and Research Wenshan Jia,Xing Lu,D. Ray

Heisey,2002-06-30 A systematic examination of Chinese communication scholarship and comprehensive critique of its theories and methodologies are long overdue and in this new collection of essays by a multicultural group of scholars both aims are achieved Focusing on such relatively new fields as Chinese health communication and Chinese communication on the internet the volume addresses key questions about the state and the future of its field Both challenging and complementing the Western views of communication it advances theories of cultural and intercultural communication while at the same time broadening our understanding of the relevance of Chinese communication studies to communication studies

overall and the ways in which this subdiscipline points the way toward a new and more complicated future The essayists whose origins include the United States Taiwan Hong Kong and China bring their many perspectives to bear on what is the most comprehensive and inclusive review of Chinese communication research literature published in English Of great benefit to Western and Eastern communication theorists philosophers of social science and Asian studies scholars Chinese
