The Changing Role of Women in Bengal, 1849-1905 Meredith Borthwick,2015-12-08 Basing her work on Bengali language sources such as women s journals private papers biographies and autobiographies Meredith Borthwick approaches the lives of women in nineteenth century Bengal from a new standpoint She moves beyond the record of the heated debates held by men of this period over matters such as widow burning child marriage and female education to explore the effects of changes in society on the lives of women and to question assumptions about advances prompted by British rule Focusing on the wives mothers and daughters of the English educated Bengali professional class Dr Borthwick contends that many reforms merely substituted a restrictive British definition of womanhood for traditional Hindu norms The positive gains for women increased physical freedom the acquisition of literacy and limited entry to nondomestic work often brought unforeseen negative consequences such as a reduction in autonomy and power in the household Originally published in 1984 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

The Changing Role of Women in Bengal, 1849-1905 Meredith Borthwick,1984-01-01 The Changing Status of Women in West Bengal, 1970-2000 Jasodhara Bagchi,Sarmistha Dutta Gupta,2005-01-24 This important and comprehensive volume vividly depicts the current status of women and girls in West Bengal The analysis has been conducted in the framework of the socio economic and politico cultural ambience that has characterized the state in recent decades The contributors highlight both areas of strength and vulnerability and clearly demonstrate that the status of women cannot be conceived as monolithic or static it has many facets and is in a state of constant flux The analysis of macro data is supported by revealing micro studies based on field surveys and an examination of cultural trends

The World of Muslim Women in Colonial Bengal, 1876-1939 Sonia Amin,2021-10-11 This highly interesting book studies the cultural context of modernisation of middle class Muslim women in late 19th and 20th century Bengal Its frames of reference are the Bengal Awakening the Reform Movements Brahmo Hindi and Muslim and the Women s Question as articulated in material and ideological terms throughout the period Tracing the emergence of the modern Muslim gentlewomen the bhadramahil starting in 1876 when Nawab Faizunnesa Chaudhurani published her first book and ending with the foundation in 1939 of The Lady Brabourne College the book gives an excellent analysis of the rise of a Muslim woman s public sphere and broadens our knowledge of Bengali social history in the colonial period

Shadow Or Substance Meredith Borthwick,1980 Two Faces of Protest Amrita Basu,1994-10-01 Drawing on case studies of the Communist Party of India Marxist in West Bengal and Shramik Sangathan in Maharashtra this ground breaking new work examines Indian women's political activism. Investigating institutional change at the state level and protest at the village level Amrita Basu traces the paths of two kinds of political activism among these women. With insights gleaned from extensive interviews with activists government officials and ordinary men and women she finds that militancy has been fueled by pronounced sexual and class cleavages combined with potentially rancorous ethnic division. Thorough in its fieldwork incisive in its political analysis Two Faces of Protest offers a richly textured and sensitive view of women's political activism in the Third World. ### The Women's Movement and Colonial Politics in Bengal

Barbara Southard, 1995 The emergence of an active women's movement in contemporary India has created new interest in discovering the historical roots of feminist thought and women's organizations in the colonial period. Professor Southard analyzes the growth of the women's movement in the crucial period between the two World Wars when the Indian nationalist movement gained momentum and women's associations first sought to address women's issues through political action. This regional study focuses on the attempts to gain a hearing for women's issues from the provincial legislature in Bengal whose powers were enhanced by the Montagu Chelmsford reforms. The author examines three women's campaigns for political rights education and social reform legislation the Bangiya Nari Samaj's quest for woman suffrage the Bengal Women's Education League's efforts on behalf of extending universal education schemes to girls and the All Bengal Women's Union's campaign for protection of women and young girls from the prostitution trade. Autobiographies and biographies records and reports of women's associations newspapers and journals and government documents such as the Bengal Legislative Council Proceedings have been used to reconstruct the social origins goals political strategies and historical significance of these women's movements. What emerges is an appreciation of the complexities inherent in alliances between nationalist and feminist movements and the constraints that limited the effectiveness of social reform movements under colonial conditions. Widespread poverty and illiteracy were obstacles that prevented the mobilization of a broad spectrum of the Bengali female population. Overshadowed by the dominant nationalist discourse it was difficult for women to develop an independent feminist perspective on the problems of Indian society. Activist women who looked to male nationalist leaders for support for their programmes often found that their allies had other priorities in this period of deepening political divisions and increasing violence. Nevertheless the women's movement made important contributions in articulating the nature and extent of gender discrimination in their society formulating a feminist philosophy that was compatible with nationalist thought and arousing public support for social change Achieving Gender Justice through Education Arpan Tulsyan,2025-03-05 This book delves into the uncharted territories of how gender dynamics subtly shape educational experiences in Indian schools While traditional educational reforms focus on increasing enrolment and making textbooks more inclusive this book highlights the overlooked yet powerful influence of hidden curriculum the implicit lessons that subtly shape students views on gender caste class and religion Positioned in feminist cultural reproduction perspective and informed by capability approach this book explores education as an object of demand a conduit for diffusion of ideas and a site for gender activism It provides a critical analysis of how schools can be transformed into spaces of empowerment negotiation and resistance for all students Drawing on immersive research that challenges ordinary interactions and processes it expands our understanding of what constitutes curriculum and knowledge Particularly useful for educationists educators policymakers academics curriculum developers teacher training institutes gender studies departments and university centres offering educational studies courses this book offers a captivating read for anyone interested in examining their own educational experiences

From the Seams of History Bharati Ray,1995 The ten essays which make up the body of this book are drawn from a wide variety of disciplines and weave a complex pattern of the experiences of women in India over the last one hundred years The book departs from traditional historiography which has given inadequate attention to women and in this sense From the Seams of History attempts to rewrite history Beginning with the debate on widow remarriage in Bengal and Haryana the book moves on to examine how the new fashions in clothing of the Bengali gentlewomen in the nineteenth century were tailored according to the values and anxieties of their dominant male counterparts The argument of male domination is taken further in an essay demonstrating that male oppression of women in Indian society was in fact remarkably similar to that of the colonial masters
