Christianity and how they think about questions of ultimate meaning      Witnessing to Christ in a Multi-Religious Context Beate Fagerli, Knud Jorgensen, Frank-Ole Thoresen, 2018-01-05 This book grows out of a desire to come to grips with our new context Until a few decades ago we believed that Norway was for Norwegians And Norwegians were Christian most of them even Lutheran Slowly at first but then with increasing momentum our neighbourhoods and villages changed from being mono cultural and mono religious into something less Norwegian but more like a rainbow society This book brings together the presentations of a symposium on these issues It featured two international keynote speakers Robert Schreiter and Kirsteen Kim as well as a group of presenters and respondents to discuss and reflect on the challenges to witnessing to Christ in societies with multiple faith traditions There is hardly any context for the Christian witness which is not a multi religious and multicultural context Also the landscapes of multi religious and multi cultural contexts are changing We are in our witness accountable for the hope we have in the living God and we are accountable to those for whom the Gospel is given as a word of hope That is not changing as the landscape and the focus of our joint pilgrimage of the Christian witness is changing This book is a significant contribution to this reflection connecting both the Norwegian perspective and the global ecumenical and inter religious challenge Olav Fykse Tveit General Secretary of the World Council of Churches The essays in this volume focus on the developing multi religious context in Norway but like all good contextual theology they also have implications for the wider church Because of this these essays are like paradigms of the kind of theology and missiology that needs to be done in many contexts throughout the world The face of our world is changing and so must the way we think about or better imagine our witness to Christ Stephen Bevans SVD Louis J Luzbetak Professor of Mission and Culture Emeritus at Catholic Theological Union Chicago These papers wrestle with what it means to bear witness to Christ as Lord and Saviour as changing demography raises new urgent and sometimes troubling questions This is contextualised dialogue in process Rosemary Dowsett lecturer convention speaker author United Kingdom Beate Fagerli is theological adviser to the Council on Ecumenical and International Relations in The Church of Norway Knud Jorgensen is adjunct professor at the MF Norwegian School of Theology and one of the editors of the Regnum Edinburgh Centenary Series Frank Ole Thoresen is rector at Fjellhaug International University College Norway      The Witness to Immortality in Literature, Philosophy and Life George Angier Gordon, 1893      The Witness of History to Christ Frederic William Farrar, 1876      Picturing Christian Witness Stanley H. Skreslet, 2006-05-03 Christian mission in previous centuries often drew on images of imperial expansion and war While few today would describe the gospel task in such imperialistic terms have we developed appropriate alternate images to associate with the good news of Jesus Christ In Picturing Christian Witness missiologist Stanley Skreslet searches for new more holistic images of mission from Scripture Undertaking a novel exegetical study of mission in the New Testament he highlights five actions that depict the witness of Jesus first followers announcing good news sharing Christ with friends interpreting the gospel shepherding and building planting After carefully examining key biblical passages Skreslet draws out the implications of these five images for the theology of mission and lets each image take shape visually through an array of Western and non Western art Picturing Christian Witness will provoke readers to imagine what mission will look like when actively embodied by contemporary disciples of Jesus     The Witness of God and Faith
