Riis,2015-07-19 Excerpt from The Children of the Poor To my little ones who as I lay down my pen come rushing in from the autumn fields their hands filled with flowers for the poor children I inscribe this book May the love that shines in their eager eyes never grow cold within them then they shall yet grow up to give a helping hand in working out this problem which so plagues the world to day As to their father s share it has been a very small and simple one and now it is done Other hands may carry forward the work My aim has been to gather the facts for them to build upon I said it in How the Other Half Lives and now in sending this volume to the printer I can add nothing The two books are one Each supplements the other Ours is an age of facts It wants facts not theories and facts I have endeavored to set down in these pages The reader may differ with me as to the application of them He may be right and I wrong But we shall not quarrel as to the facts themselves I think A false prophet in our day could do less harm than a careless reporter That name I hope I shall not deserve To lay aside a work that has been so long a part of ones life is like losing a friend But for the one lost I have gained many They have been much to me About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The Children of the Poor Jacob August Riis,1970 Rising Child Poverty in Europe: Mitigating the Scarring from the COVID-19 Pandemic Mr. Jean-Jacques Hallaert,Iglika Vassileva,Tingyun Chen,2023-06-30 Child poverty increased dramatically during the COVID 19 pandemic In 2020 alone the number of children suffering from poverty in the EU increased by 19 percent or close to 1 million Left unaddressed this would not only affect individuals life prospects and well being but also have long term economic implications This paper argues that to limit this potential scarring effect of the pandemic policies should be deployed to reduce rapidly the number of children affected by poverty and mitigate the long term impact of poverty Reducing the number of children affected by poverty can be achieved by i labor policies and reforms that increase parental work and the labor income of poor parents and ii fiscal spending on family and children that can have a powerful and immediate impact These policies need to be complemented by public investment in education and childcare health and housing to mitigate the long term impact of child poverty Child poverty in Scotland Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Scottish Affairs Committee,2008-02-04 Child poverty in Scotland has reduced significantly since 1997 due to unprecedented levels of investment and a political determination to reduce poverty but the Scottish Affairs Committee expresses some concern that such progress maybe slowing The objective of halving child poverty by 2010 will require extra resources and commitment Poverty can be endemic from generation to generation but reducing child poverty can break such a cycle of deprivation Child poverty reduction can occur through improving the incomes of parents but an integrated strategy between the Scottish Executive and local authorities could bring about greater improvements though problems still remain with inconsistencies and complexities within the welfare system The Committee believes the key to the reduction of child poverty lies in tackling low pay job retention and career advancement Also access to affordable childcare could improve the opportunities for parents to undertake training Child Tax Credits have also been a key factor in reducing child poverty but greater awareness of individual entitlements could be improved Also the tax and benefits system must be flexible enough to respond to the changing needs of individuals in moving out of poverty trap The Children of the Poor.
