Networks in Technology Commercialization Malla Mattila, Hanna Lehtimäki, 2016 This article examines technology commercialization as networked processes. It presents a longitudinal analysis of a technological invention called intelligent paper over a period of 13 years in 1997-2009. In the analysis six technology commercialization phases are identified and the roles of various actors in each phase are depicted. The study shows how the processes of technology development and commercialization intertwine and shape each other. The study contributes to literature on commercialization of innovation by presenting an empirical case study where the processes of technology development and commercialization are complex and continuously evolving processes.

Global Technology Transfer John Chumack, 2002 Governments the world over fret continuously about the low level of transfer of technology especially within their own countries. The general problem is military to industry although the variations are numerous. Problems of presentation offering and support complicate an already byzantine world. Yet somewhere within this dilemma lie the seeds of tomorrow's economic uptick. Besides the nontrivial problems involved here the reluctance of the people having the technology to share it with someone who can profit from it stands out. This book presents the issues and offers a comprehensive bibliography for easy access.

Technology Commercialization Tayeb Dehghani, 2019 Frequent changes in competitors' status technology and customer interests make it unwise and impossible for companies to rely on their products. Customers always seek to find new products. Consequently companies should continuously produce and offer superior products to meet customer needs tastes and expectations. In fact every company needs a development plan for its new products. Research has demonstrated that one of the major reasons for rapid development of technology in industrial countries is commercialization of research results. The basis of such commercialization is research industry collaboration in converting research output into innovation. Today technology commercialization and its outcomes can provide financial resources required for organizational longevity. The main objective of this article is to propose a model for commercializing research findings from idea generation to initial market entry. We believe that this article can hopefully contribute to commercialization literature by acting as a guide to local authorities involved in commercialization cycle.
