Technology and Organization Nelson Phillips, Dorothy S. Griffiths, Graham Sewell, 2010 The Semantics of Grammatical Dependencies argues that constraints of interaction from semantic evaluations enforce grammatical dependency patterns that recur across natural languages and within constructions at intra and inter sentential levels as well as discourse levels The book develops along three lines Firstly a handle is gained on why languages are structured around localities with localities functioning as actions of reset to permit the reuse of grammatical resources that maintain a fixed semantic contribution Secondly sensitivity is brought to the linear and hierarchical placement of scope information to capture ordering effects like accessibility crossover and intervention Thirdly an interestingly different perspective is reached on what it means to be grammatical rather than being a destructive feature that bans or filters out bad structure grammaticality takes on a role of constructive guidance that keeps languages to what are generally unambiguous canonical forms that moreover guarantee required dependencies The book will be of interest to advanced undergraduate students post graduate and research students and all researchers in the formal analysis of the syntax semantics and pragmatics of natural language Technology Management IntroBooks,2019-01-16 In a world that is completely dependent on technology how can big businesses organizations enterprises and sectors stay behind The need for technology is increasing day by day and hence there are so many organizations that are focusing on innovation and creation to make their name big in the market Technology is the key to the success of any organization and hence more and more technologies are being incorporated into many different companies The need for technology is increasing which is the reason why the need for its management is also increasing Technology management is a concept that is gaining a lot of popularity because it is needed in abundance by various big organizations It is process and art of handling all the technologies of an organization and making sure that they are in the right use and are absolutely safe A technology manager has the right and sound knowledge for each and every aspect when it comes to technology and also when it comes to management Technology management is the trendiest occupation out there and its need will never end till the time we are dependent on technology Technology and Organization Harry Scarbrough,J. The Machine at Work Keith Grint, Steve Woolgar, 1997-05-28 This highly topical book is a concise and accessible account of the relationship between technology and work Firstly it reviews and critically assesses a variety of recent approaches to the social and cultural dimensions of technology Secondly it examines the implications of these new approaches for existing ideas about the nature of technology and work organization At the core of much thinking about technology is the assumption that the technical character and capacity of artefacts is given The enduring image of deus ex machina captures the idea that it is the essential capacity within a technology which in the end accounts for the way we organize ourselves our work and other life experiences Recent work in the sociology of technology by contrast sets out relativist and constructivist accounts of technology which begin to challenge this central assumption The Machine at Work includes a reinterpretation of the Luddites a review of the social processes of development in information technology a reassessment of theories of the role of technology in work and an analysis of the common limitations of some constructivist and feminist perspectives on technology The book argues that only a commitment to a particular conception of constructivism enables the kind of radical rethinking about technology and work relations that is needed This engaging and informative text will be of interest to students in a range of subject areas from sociology organizational theory and behaviour to industrial relations management and business studies
