The Developing Person A Life Span Approach Second Edition:

Life-span Development Leonie Sugarman, 2004-03-01 This thorough revision of the highly successful first edition of Life Span Development offers the reader a wide ranging and thought provoking account of human development throughout the lifespan The lifespan approach emphasises that development does not stop when we cease to be adolescents but goes on throughout adulthood and into old age In initial chapters Leonie Sugarman outlines the issues surrounding the notion of development and how it can be studied including reviews of the work of key theorists Erikson Levinson and Gould She goes on to consider the different ways in which the life course can be construed as a series of age related stages as a cumulative sequence as a series of developmental tasks as a series of key life events and transitions or as a narrative construction which creates a sense of dynamic continuity A final chapter looks at how people cope the resources that are available and the theoretical and practical issues regarding interventions to assist them in the process New to this edition is increased coverage of the topical issue of successful ageing and a new chapter on the increasingly popular narrative approach to lifespan development This edition is also more student friendly with exercises in self reflection that encourage the reader to look at the development of their own lives or those of their current or future clients Boxed material highlighting major theories and clarifying concepts is also included This book will be invaluable for students of developmental and occupational psychology and professionals in the fields of health management education and social work Age Studies Susan

Educational Psychology in a Changing World Gerda Siann, Denis C. E. Ugwuegbu, 2024-08-01 Originally published in 1988 this is a fully revised second edition of the successful introductory textbook on developmental and educational psychology With its cross cultural framework the book was aimed at students of education and psychology in multi cultural communities as well as at those studying in the developing world The authors present an overview of developmental and educational psychology that does not rest on any single model of home environment Instead by drawing critically on a wide survey of cross cultural data they look at the ways in which different home environments in nuclear and extended families and differing social values can affect children's emotional, social and intellectual development. They focus particularly on the ways in which home background can influence the child's ability to cope with a formal education system. The book relates theory to practical aspects of child care and development and leads the reader through the world of childhood, the primary school years, adolescence and youth, and school and society. This second edition takes full account of new cross-cultural research and particularly work which had been undertaken by researchers in developing countries at the time. The sections on learning and instruction incorporate recent advances in cognitive research and new sections have been added particularly in the fields of social cognition and social development.

A Critical Approach to Human Growth and Development Paula Nicolson, 2014-04-25. What does it mean to be human? This critical text from a well-respected author captures and interrogates the many models which have been developed to explore and explain human behaviour. Informed by sociological, psychological and biological perspectives, the book plots the key stages of the life course from childhood through to older age.

Family, Self, and Human Development Across Cultures Cigdem Kagitcibasi, 2007-03-09. Reflecting author Cigdem Kagitcibasi's influential work over the last two decades, this new edition examines human development, the self and the family in a cultural context. It challenges the existing assumptions in mainstream western psychology about the nature of individuals. The author proposes a new model, the Autonomous Related Self.
