Crime of Innocence in the Fiction of Toni Morrison Terry Otten,1989 In this ground breaking study of Morrison s five novels Terry Otten explores the mythic substructure of her fictions by tracing the pervasive motif of the biblical fall The crime of innocence describes how Morrison recasts the fall from innocence as a necessary gesture of freedom a felix culpa adapted to the demands of contemporary America Employing biblical and theological elements these novels suggest that no greater sin exists than innocence In a fictional world where good and evil constantly shift a fall is essential to an authentic life however frightening the risks however ironic the end Cover The Victorian Novel Laurence W. Mazzeno,1989 The works selected for inclusion in this bibliography have remained among the most read and studied in undergraduate classes on the novel or on Victorian literature The bibliography is arranged alphabetically by author and title For each author a general bibliography is included The citations provide references to readily accessible works that discuss the author s life and achievements often providing comparisons with contemporaries or with novelists of other periods After each title a number of citations point the student to books or chapters in books providing a detailed discussion of the individual works by the ever popular Victorian novelists

The Double in the Fiction of R.L. Stevenson, Wilkie Collins, and Daphne Du Maurier Nathalie

Abi-Ezzi,2003 Robert Louis Stevenson Wilkie Collins and Daphne du Maurier are authors of particular importance to the literature of the double having produced among other works The Strange Case of Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde The Woman in White and Rebecca Each also rejected the prevailing social order of his or her time a factor that plays an important role in determining how the double is represented and treated The literary theory of romance narrative structure follows the hero s journey through a dark descent to a happier ascent but this journey is shown to apply to a largely masculine identity On the other hand the rise of the female persona and her relation to the double is a progression that is clearly charted through the works of Stevenson Collins and du Maurier It shows an extraordinary alteration in the structure of traditional romance narrative and leads to an exploration of new ways in which the imprisoned female character may be able to free herself and become whole

English Novel Explication Christian J. W. Kloesel,1986 For over twenty five years the English Novel Explication series has been providing students and teachers of literature and reference librarians with a thorough easy to use reference to interpretations of works by novelists from the United Kingdom The explications cited in these volumes are interpretations of the significance and the meaning of the novels and can range from discussions of theme imagery or symbolism to diction or structure All critical stances including post structuralist deconstructionist and semiotic are included Quick access to the material is provided via integrated author title indexes Organization is alphabetical by novelist with authors followed by an alphabetical list of their works and dates of publication Explications are cited by last name of author and include title and page references while a complete list of books and periodicals indexed follows the text British
